News, features, opinion, ads – we offer all of it

Few readers look for just one thing when they pick up the Journal each week.

Most of them want to read about a lot of different topics and people. That's why they pick up a newspaper.

So in trying to deliver the varied needs and wants of so many different readers, we offer a lot of stuff.

This week, for example, readers can find out about the guy who has been hired to improve operations of Winchester House, the county's beleaguered nursing home. Correspondent Esther J. Cepeda introduces him to you on the cover of the Lake County section.

Inside that section, on the Opinion page, columnist John S. Matijevich writes about local communities that think they have too many banks. Although, as he points out, bank robbers don't seem to mind.

In LakeLife, reporter Helen Mansfield takes you inside a group of local women who like to sit around stitching and ... uh, talking. Read the real rhyme on the cover of LakeLife.

The section you're holding has your intensely local news – a look at what's going on in your community.

And would you believe that of all the things readers look for in this newspaper, advertising is among the top five?

Of course, not everything in the paper is for everybody. But there is always something for everyone.

Let us know what you think by sending an e-mail to llough@nwnewsgroup.com.

Thanks for reading the Journal.

"Serving our communities to make them better places to live"

Quote of the Week

"Why are we regulating the choices of people?"
—Trustee Scott Pierce (see story on below)

Antioch next town to consider no smoke

By TARA CLIFTON
tclifton@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH – Monday night, Antioch was the Lake County Health Department's latest stop in a tour of presentations asking towns to go smoke free.

Village trustees and business owners did not seem to receive the message well.

Trustees said they were not willing to create a no-smoking ordinance that could force many businesses to shut their doors.

Arlene Tomasello, owner of Double Eagle Sports Club, 955 Route 59, said 80 to 90 percent of her customers smoke.

"Our business would be affected," Tomasello said.

Trustee Scott Pierce put out his opinion bluntly.

"I'm not sympathetic to this at all," Pierce said. "If we're going to ban this, then why isn't there a leaf burning ban? That causes just as many health concerns. We can encourage businesses to go smoke free, but requiring them is a stretch."

Health department officials emphasized that their focus was preventing cancer and other diseases.

"We're not talking about taking away smokers' rights, but providing a healthy community for everybody," said Barbara de Nekker, a health department employee.

This point was driven home with a six-minute health department video that featured testimonials from various business owners who said their establishments did not lose money after going smoke free. Many of these were in towns larger than Antioch.

Antioch's 8,800 small population was one of Trustee Mary Turner's biggest concerns.

"If Antioch did this, they [customers] would drive to other towns and we would notice a difference in business," Turner said. "They could just go right over the [Wisconsin] border."

Linda Binanti, owner of Taste of Italy, on Main Street, said she made her eatery smoke-free since it opened, and has had plenty of business.

Binanti said she chose to make her restaurant smoke-free for health reasons, but said it was important that other business owners had the freedom to make their own decision on the issue rather than being forced through an ordinance.

"Why are we regulating the choices of people?" Pierce said, directing his question to Kristine Andersen of the health deparment.

Her answer was direct: "Because it causes cancer."

Trustee Larry Hanson said he didn't want to risk putting people out of business, despite the health risks that cigarette smoke carries.

"I'm not a smoker and I wish they'd all stop smoking," Hanson said. "But I don't want to take someone's livelihood away."

Officials have mixed feelings on casino

Some worried about traffic, roads

By TARA CLIFTON
tclifton@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH – Some Lake County officials are apprehensive over the possibility of a new casino in Kenosha, Wis., only six miles from the county's border.

But Antioch leaders don't seem to be too worried about the gambling facility's impact. At least not yet.

The Menominee Tribe and the Mohegan Tribe of Connecticut want to convert land in Kenosha into an Indian reservation to build the casino. The casino's cost is estimated at $808 million and will occupy about 223 acres, open 2,300 jobs, and include the Dairyland Dog Track and a hotel resort.

JoAnn D. Osmond, 61st District, R-Antioch, organized a public hearing March 6 at Zion-Benton Township High School to air concerns. Roughly 30 residents showed up.

Osmond is making sure lawmakers know the situation as well.

She left Tuesday for Washington, D.C., to testify before congressional committees, said Linda Pedersen, Antioch Township trustee.

According to a letter Osmond sent to Suzi Schmidt, Lake County Board Chairman, Osmond believes that officials don't realize the impact the casino could have on Lake County.

Schmidt said she is most worried about traffic and roads should the casino become a reality.

"We already have overcrowded roads in Lake County," Schmidt said, and the gambling center would increase traffic.

Schmidt said she has talked with representatives of the Menominee and Mohegan tribes as well as the Bureau of Indian Affairs, which must decide whether the Kenosha land should become an Indian reservation.

"What is the county going to get out of this? " Schmidt said.

Antioch Police Chief James Foerster said he hasn't really thought too much about the casino, given that it is in the early stages of planning and he is dealing with more pressing matters.

Still, he said he thinks Kenosha will bear the ups and downs of the casino.

"I don't think it will have a big effect on us," Foerster said. "Until I hear something more concrete, I wouldn't give it much thought."

Mayor Dorothy Larson said she also has other village issues to deal with, and doesn't believe the proposed facility will affect Antioch.

Larson said some Antioch residents might get a few low end jobs at the casino, but she said she thinks those jobs will go to Kenosha residents or tribe members.

"It won't be a big benefit," Larson said.

Program to help school kids in Iraq

Company asking for money to buy supplies

By TARA CLIFTON
tclifton@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH – In times of war, children are often forgotten, said Patrick Goodness.

He hopes his company's new program, Operation School Supplies, will help change that.

The Goodness Company, a marketing, advertising and public relations firm based in Antioch, of which Goodness is president, will take monetary donations from the community.

The money will be used to buy bulk packages of pens, pencils, crayons, chalk and more for needy schools in Iraq, Goodness said.

The program started, Goodness said, with an e-mail he received from United States Army Colonel Mark E. Anderson, an old high school classmate of one of Goodness' brothers.

Want to help?

Call Patrick Goodness at (847) 838-1010 for more information
- Monetary donations preferred
- Items in bulk preferred
- Suggestions accepted

The soldier said many schools in Iraq, where he is stationed, don't have the materials they need to learn. He asked Goodness for help.

"This is a wonderful opportunity for everyone, no matter what side of the fence you're on," Goodness said. "We all believe children deserve an education."

Operation School Supplies sent out its first shipment April 1, about $2,000 worth of school equipment, Goodness said.

Goodness said he would like to get donations large enough to buy a pack of 100 crayons, for example, so no children will be left out. Other items, like blankets, will also be accepted.

Goodness said looking at his own children inspired him to create the charity program.

"These kids who are my sons and daughters' ages know nothing but war," Goodness said. "These kids will never have an opportunity to enjoy that freedom [of learning in peace]."

D34 searches for answers, plan

By TARA CLIFTON
tclifton@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH – After a failed referendum on March 21, School District 34 officials are turning to the community for answers.

The referendum asked residents to help pay for a new elementary school and middle school, plus repairs to existing schools. The project would have cost roughly $45.6 million, increasing the tax rate by 20 cents.

The new schools were intended to be the solution to the district's overpopulation problem.

District Superintendent Scott Thompson and other officials want to know why people voted no.

To find out, the district will host a forum at 7:30 p.m. May 1 at Hillcrest School, 433 Depot Street.

The meeting will be a question and answer session, focusing on why parents didn't support the referendum, how the district can handle overcrowded schools, and any ideas for future plans.

Thompson said officials know that new buildings will be a necessity in the future.

"There are already too many children in the system to be housed in the buildings we currently have," Thompson said. "We have to find a plan that can be supported by the community."

Residents can also take an online survey at www.antioch34.com, the district's Web site. Officials are particularly interested in why more parents did not vote, Thompson said. Less than 4,000 people voted, and the district houses over 3,000 students.

The survey will also ask the community what direction they want to see the district take.

"The district is committed to being responsive to the community," Thompson said. "I know that the majority of the residents want what is best for the children.

AUGS hosts drug prevention meeting

By TARA CLIFTON
tclifton@nwnewsgroup.com

The idea of children using drugs and alcohol is scary for many parents, but they can take steps to prevent such use, said a Lake County health official.

Ron Jakubisin, a prevention specialist with the health department, gave advice to parents and teachers about youth drug use during a meeting at Antioch Upper Grade School Tuesday night.

The biggest weapon against drug use is education, Jakubisin said, and parents need to know the facts.

Jakubisin presented some of these facts, to a group of about 20 people, using a slide show presentation. Many listened intently, and nodded in agreement with specific bits of information.

One slide showed first-time substance use among high school seniors in 2004. Fifteen percent of those surveyed said they used alcohol for the first time at 14 years of age. They tried marijuana at 15.

Jakubisin said parents should also remember that as children grow older, they rely more upon peers for information.

That's why parents need to make sure the lines of communication with their students are open, Jakubisin said.

He can understand, however, that talking to kids about drugs can be awkward.

"It's a very difficult conversation to have," Jakubisin said.

The Allendale Association wants to hear from residents, and is hosting a forum to exchange ideas.

Safety lesson

Smoke alarm safety

ANTIOCH – Fire department officials remind residents to change their smoke alarm batteries along with their clocks this first week of April.

Alarm batteries should be changed at least once every year. Officials recommend picking a holiday or another special day to help remember. If the alarm makes a chirping noise, the batteries should be replaced.

Smoke detectors themselves last eight to 10 years. Follow manufacturer's instructions for installation and replacement.

For more information, contact the Antioch Fire Department at (847) 395-5511.

Smoke alarms should be installed on every level of a home, near sleeping areas and the basement.

Having her say

Animals
If you must give up your beloved pet, please consider these suggestions.
•Free animal ads suggest that there is something wrong with the animal, or that it has no value.
•Some people who respond to these free animal ads are imposters and are only concerned about making a profit and not the animal's welfare.
•Charging a fee to a potential pet owner confirms the responsibility of pet ownership for an entire lifetime of that pet. For more information, please contact the Humane Society.

Total puppy in a dog body that seems too big for him! Poochini often looks like he is still trying to coordinate his long legs when he is running in one of the play areas. Always willing to meet canine mates on his walks, he gives them puppy eyes, then gets all revved up and sparkles of happiness shine in his eyes. Extremely playful, everyone here has fallen in love with this face. Picked up as a stray, he can be playful mouthy at times, we can maybe assume that his "old family" though tthat was cute when he was a puppy but as her grew bigger, they never gave him a chance to learn proper doggie etiquette. So if you like big dogs and are willing to make him shine, he is your guy!

New Winchester House administrator looks to improve county nursing facility

By ESTHER J. CEPEDA

LIBERTYVILLE – Newly appointed Winchester House administrator James J. Weibeler said he has used vision and enthusiasm as his main tools since he began to tackle the rebirth of the county's beleaguered nursing facility.

Navigating through the twisting corridors of the Winchester House, Weibeler stops to greet clients and personnel with a smile and a loud hello as he goes on to point out all the little things that will help revitalize the atmosphere of the facility.

A fresh coat of paint here, bright art for the walls there, and other aesthetic touches might not seem like much but will pay huge dividends on the mood of the residents and staff, he said.

Weibeler, who stepped into a thorny situation after his predecessor left the facility with the stain of multimillion-dollar losses and the resulting layoff of 54 workers, says he's been welcomed warmly by the administration, residents and staff alike.

"The board has been wonderfully supportive, and the staff and residents, too," he said. "When I went through the interview process it became clear people were upset and unhappy about the layoffs but I get the feeling that the staff are really happy I'm here and are anxious to move forward."

Weibeler sees Winchester House's future success in strengthening relationships with local hospitals, the com-

New test plan aims at drugs

A new organization based in Johnsburg wants to help parents who might be wondering whether their children are using illegal drugs.

A simple home-use urine test could do the job.

The nonprofit Family Interactive Drug Testing is raising money to mail free drug tests to 1,900 families in Johnsburg.

But direct mail might be too hard a sell.

The home-test kits would be sent to parents of seventh-graders through high school seniors in District 12 and St. John the Baptist Catholic School.

Family Interactive leaders George Braun and Ron Folz want to raise $15,000 to buy the kits and pay schools for postage and handling. Other organizations do the same.

Many parents might find the uninvited drug kits to be intrusive, offensive or of little value. But certainly, some parents will use them.

But Braun admits most parents won't use the kits, saying they instead might serve as a deterrent to drug use.

The test can show the presence of cocaine, crystal methamphetamine, heroin or marijuana. It also will indicate whether the urine sample is diluted or old. The tests are highly accurate, Braun said.

What is most important is how parents respond to any positive test. Their reaction can make the report a blessing to change lives or a wedge to deepen family troubles.

Parents need to seek professional help. It is available through organizations such as Family Services at (815) 385-6400 or Alanon and Alateen at (815) 459-6190.

Innovative approaches are needed.

Whether Family Interactive can raise $15,000 remains to be seen. But mailing them to 1,900 homes might not be an effective use of money, especially when organizers say most people won't use them.

We hope that at the kits can be available to parents who actually intend to use them. The numbers would drop markedly, but there might be enough to make them available to parents across McHenry County - possibly a better, more effective approach.

Indelicate indifference

This might sound like preaching to the choir during Lent.

But, folks, too many of us are swearing up a storm. And we won't even get into the Third Commandment about taking the Lord's name in vain.

That might sound almost innocent, but you're messing with the Almighty. Foul words might be safer.

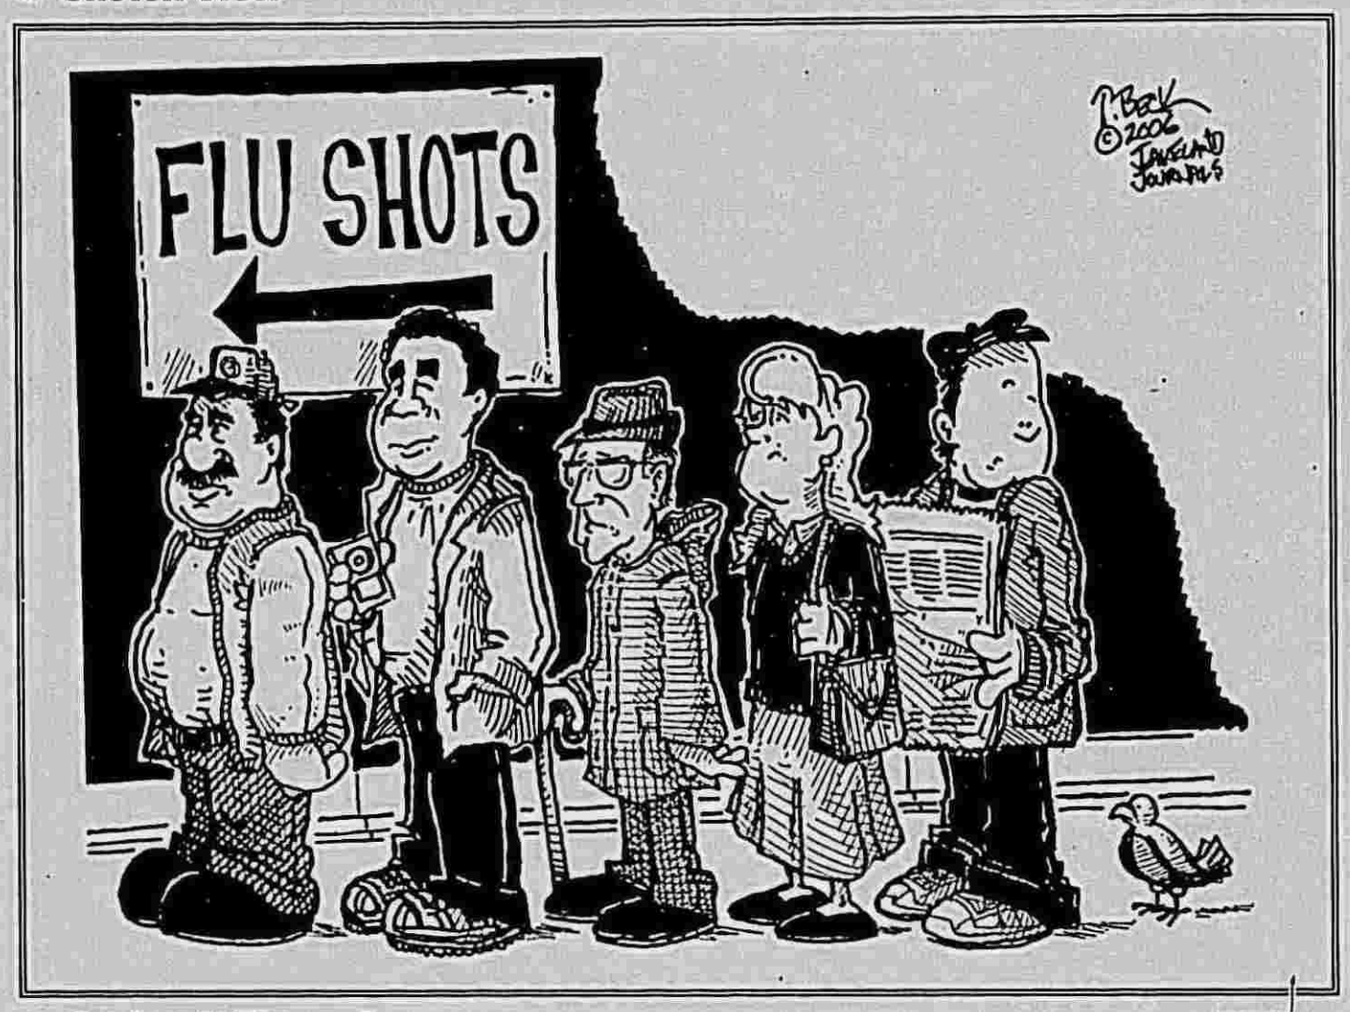

According to a new Associated Press-Ipsos poll, three-quarters of people hear swearing in public. More often than 20 years ago, they say.

But they likely are living in glass houses. Three-quarters of people say they swear, and two-thirds say they use the mother of them all. And you all know what that four-letter vulgarity is. Or at least three-quarters of you do.

Blame can be spread far and wide. TV. The movies. Music. Entertainers. Politicians. Indifference.

But we might want to take a look in the mirror. Too many of us ought to clip a bar of soap to our pants. We probably need it more often than the cell phone next to it.

Seeing It Through

Do we need more banks in the area

John S. Matijevich

Just recently, it was reported that the Village of Grayslake is concerned and believes that there should be a moratorium on the construction of any new banks in the community. They are echoing the concerns expressed by other communities, particularly in the suburbs, that "enough is enough" with the growing number of banks in their areas.

There was a time when small communities put out the welcome mat to get banks to locate in their towns. It presented a wholesome image that a village or city had its own hometown bank. In those days, one bank was plenty for a village or small city, and a larger city might have a bank " right downtown," and another one nearby. Community banks added to the pride, as well as consumer convenience, for a city.

Convenience has turned to excess, according to many municipalities. With banks, branch banks, facilities at super markets, ATM's, and credit unions, its fairly easy to find a place to handle any financial transaction you wish to make. But enough isn't enough, as the banking industry seems to expand all over the place.

Naturally, its all about money. Isn't that what banks are about? But, municipalities are about money too. Tax money. Downtown areas, where banks like to locate, are usually at prime real estate sites, and municipalities want to develop those sites for commercial enterprises that generate sales tax revenues, in addition to the local real property tax revenues.

I can't blame the communities that try in some way to stem the rising tide of banking facilities. We are getting to the point of having too much of everything at just about every comer. Do we really need any more of the banks and "mini-banks" at every turn?

There's another problem. About the same time I read about the question of a moratorium on banks in Grayslake, I read that the FBI had reported an almost 50 percent increase in bank robberies in the Chicago area last year. The surge in the suburban area is particularly noteworthy. Although the report indicated that officials have been unable to explain the rapid rise in bank robberies, I have a clue for them.

Simple arithmetic tells you that when there are so many banks popping up all over, there are bound to be more bank robberies. Also, many bank robbers know how to ply their trade, too. They tend to believe that there will be less security at the smaller banks and at suburban locations, so there are more bank robberies there. Just since the turn of the year, we have had an alarming rate of bank robberies in Lake County, and I believe that one bank in

Lake County a leader in 'March for Meals'

On March 22, the faces of low-income seniors throughout Lake County lit up when they answered their doors to find their local mayor delivering their Meals on Wheels lunch. Fifteen mayors participated in Mayors for Meals on behalf of Catholic Charities Lake County Senior Community Services, which administers the Meals on Wheels programs in Lake County.

Mayors for Meals is a national effort sponsored by the Meals on Wheels Association of America (MOWAA), and according to MOWAA, Lake County rallied more mayors than any other county in the nation.

Each mayor delivered meals to seniors in their respective communities, accompanied by a staff member from Catholic Charities, or a member of Catholic Charities Lake County Services Board of Advisors.

Teams were: Round Lake Park Mayor Jean McCue and Carol Headley, of the Catholic Charities Board of Advisors; Mundelein Mayor Ken Kessler and Ray Swaback, also of the board of advisors; Libertyville Mayor Jeff Harge and Todd Douthat, of the board of advisors); Lake Forest Alderman Roger Moore and Peg Ciccarelli and Ginny Primak, of the board of advisors; North Chicago Mayor Leon Rockingham and Michael Knight, of the board of advisors) and Terri Denny, of Catholic Charities; Highland Park Mayor Michael Belsky and Sandra Shinsky, of the board of advisors; Gurnee Mayor Kristina Kovarik and Eileen Lerum, of the board of advisors), Frank Phillips, Catholic Charities and Marley Sweeney, MOWAA; Hainesville Mayor Ted Mueller and Marla Harris, of Catholic Charities; Round Lake Heights Mayor Terrance Lumpkins and Evelyn Norman-Cotton, of Catholic Charities; Round Lake Mayor William Gentes and Dorothy Russell, of Catholic Charities; Round Lake Beach Mayor Rich Hill and Jan Ahlgrim, of Catholic Charities; Long Grove Mayor Maria Rodriguez and Tanya Presnikov, of Catholic Charities; Lindenhurst Mayor James Betustak and Ronna Levin, of Catholic Charities; Park City Mayor Steve Pannelland Tamara Maki, of Catholic Charities.

"Our programs are essential because they reach seniors who are vulnerable to malnutrition and social isolation," said Frank Phillips, director of senior community services at Catholic Charities. "In addition to nourishing food, our staff and over 500 volunteers provide an invaluable safety check year-round for those living alone, as well as a vital social visit for people with few outside contacts."

Rumor mill

The emotions ran high during the GOP primary race for the 31st Senate seat. They are apparently still high as post-election night sparks continue to fly around the new Republican nominee, Warren Township Supervisor Suzanne Simpson.

The word on the street was that, despite running on a campaign of renewed vigor and leadership for the residents of the 31st District, Simpson had been diagnosed with cancer and had known of her ailment for some time.

"That is absolutely not true," Simpson said. "I heard this rumor, too, at a restaurant. I am in very good health. Campaigning for political office is definitely not how I would spend my time if I was seriously ill. I'll admit I looked a little haggard at the end of the campaign, but no."

Simpson graciously volunteered that perhaps some well-intentioned person had mistaken her with former Lt. Gov. Corinne Wood who is fighting a more aggressive recurrence of the breast cancer she was diagnosed with in the spring of 1997.

Budget showdown

Under the glare of Gurnee's residents, trustee Ray Damijonaitis and Mayor Kristina Kovarik bickered over strategy for the village's $45 million budget: cut costs or raise revenue.

"I have not seen evidence of cost-cutting in our budget," said Damijonaitis, who pointed to Libertyville and Vernon Hills as exemplars of budget reform. "I don't think that we should raise our taxes until we can show that we can save what money we have."

Trustees faced two options on Monday night. One plan cut $1.45 million; the other, one million. The former reduced a greater number of village employees and funding; the latter cut fewer positions and less funding, and called for the implementation of resident rescue fees and business licenses.

"It's not just about saving money, it's also about delivering services," said Kovarik.

The board had scheduled Monday night's meeting as the fifth and final installment in a series of budget hearings, in which village officials have dissected a budget of $45 million.

Instead, the trustees elected to hold another budget hearing on April 14. At that time, they hope to finalize the budget for fiscal year 2006-07, and formally adopt that budget the following week.

"I'm very concerned ... that we're going to jump from the frying pan into the fire," Damijonaitis said.

Damijonaitis and Kovarik agreed, however, on the need for long-term financial planning, which the village lacks, according to Kovarik. Both also stressed the importance of investment in infrastructure. Their comparatively mum constituents supported these thoughts.

"It's coming," Kovarik said of the inevitable and incessant costs of maintaining roads, sewers and water mains.

Ryg lobbies for seniors

State Rep. Kathy Ryg (D–Vernon Hills) passed legislation facilitating the expansion of successful senior programs throughout the state. The bill requires an existing state committee to investigate opportunities for improving senior support services.

"There are successful programs being used throughout the state that could be expanded and made available to more seniors," Ryg said. "This legislation is a cost effective way to take advantage of programs that are already working."

Ryg's legislation, which is supported by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), requires the Older Adult Services Advisory Committee to investigate demonstration and pilot projects in Illinois and throughout the country.

"Local organizations have found innovative ways to help seniors find accessible transportation, affordable housing and homecare services," Ryg said. "The state can play an important role in supporting these programs and offering them to more seniors throughout the state."

Robbery up in suburbs

• BANKS

DuPage County was held up three times.

Whenever I write about something that relates to robberies, I can't help but return to my favorite quote mouthed by the famous bank robber, Willie Sutton, when he was questioned why he robbed banks. Sutton answered that he robbed banks "because that's where the money is." Bank robberies may rank low in the total number of robbery crimes committed, but it ranks highest in amount of money received per heist.

When I told a friend that there's too many banks breaking onto the landscape, he added another perspective. He said that with the dwindling paychecks, Americans will find less need to make trips to the banks. I hope that he's wrong, but in any event, there's enough banking facilities now to handle the "workload." Good luck, Grayslake, on your efforts at a moratorium.

Letters To The Editor

Rein in school boards

Over and over, local school boards have breached the public's trust and have established that further restrictions on their actions are required to protect people losing their homes all because of today's version of public education.

The threats and intimidation tactics coming from the school boards and the union are out of control. I now suggest that we look to the north.

Wisconsin folks with their Republican controlled legislature might be sparred from financial ruin with the Taxpayer Protection Act. This puts the cheeseheads ahead of us flatlanders because for too long they have been ripped off by shell games, tax swaps and broken promises.

Their answer?

Enact additional restrictions on how all government bodies collect and spend money. Limiting referendums to one every four years, coinciding with the presidential election is another segment to the act.

The only politicians opposing it, however, are the usual suspects. The ones taking money from the teachers union.

State Sen. Pam Althoff and state Rep. Jack Franks come to mind here in McHenry County. Funding has become a fighting word in Wisconsin.

Learn English, please

I desperately need to respond to a letter from Essie Hough in Huntley and a few others regarding the language situation that has developed in the United States.

You are so right.

My grandparents didn't receive special treatment because they couldn't speak English. Instructions were not written in Polish or German for them.

Billboards were written in English and radio broadcasts were in English as well.

When my mother went to school she had to speak English or leave. I'm sick and tired of a volume of instructions every time I buy something, even directions on packaged foods.

Learn the language if you want to live in America, I'd do the same if I came to live in your country.

Many times we have traveled and tried very hard to familiarize ourselves with the customs and language of where we're going.

Have the same respect for the United States, especially if you plan on living here.

Bush threatens democracy

We, the people of the United States, have a right to know what is going on with regard to the security of our nation, especially when the president is taking liberties with our liberties.

He is not above the law, nor can he change them to suit his derisive purposes.

He is not about homeland security at all. If he were, he would not let a terrorist funding nation take over our ports.

We need the checks and balances now more than ever.

Our Founding Fathers were afraid of an administration just like this when they created the checks and balances.

We need to investigate these illegal wiretapping incidences and think seriously about articles of impeachment for President Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney.

See the whole picture

As a special education teacher in Lake County, I was offended and appalled by the comments written by Esther Cepeda, as posted in the March 10 Lakeland Journal.

I would ask Ms. Cepeda her rationale for targeting specific, isolated incidents as representative for all educators? How can the decisions of a few people reflect the moral fiber of educators as a whole? Furthermore, if all teachers were as morally corrupt as Ms. Cepeda indicates, it is some wonder that any of us are literate.

Please consider, Ms. Cepeda, that as you type these harsh words that are printed for all to see, some of us quietly maintain our positions in the trenches; teaching underprivileged children from homes where poverty is rampant, drugs are continually a threat, and single parents are often doing their very best to keep the wheels from proverbially falling off. Many times homework takes a backseat to the maintenance of simply existing.

The school district in which I serve (and I do consider it an honor to do so) has the highest number of master's degree holding educators in all of Lake County. Our district is also one of the most challenged. Despite the fact that many of us take on debt to further our knowledge and become better practitioners, we are criticized as "flushing our own credibility down the toilet."

Shame on you for those comments. Shame on Jim Oberweis for suggesting that our schools should be a system equitable to that of a profitable business. And shame on any teacher who can not inspire students that live in a society where the attainment of faster dial-up speeds, bigger cars, higher definition TVs, and instant messaging are the measure of one's character and value.

Legacy of Ila Bauer

As we observe Women's History Month in March, we have the sad opportunity to celebrate the legacy of one of Lake County's own. Round Lake Park Village President Ila Bauer left a legacy that embodies the spirit of commitment and dedication in public service. Her lifelong career in education left her many "students" (young and old) with new knowledge and understanding, not only from books but from life experiences and her example. Her love of community led to progressive developments in housing and transportation. Her leadership paved the way for cooperation and consensus.

Lake County is a better place for President Bauer's service. She will be deeply missed by her family, friends and colleagues, but she clearly has left a lifetime's worth of accomplishment and is well deserving of a special remembrance during Women's History Month in Lake County.

Smoking snuffed out at health department

By ESTHER J. CEPEDA
news@nwnewsgroup.com

At the end of last month the Lake County Health Department kicked butt – but didn't take names, thankfully – during National Kick Butts Day when it declared all of its facilities tobacco-free.

Following the national trends toward enhancing public health by eliminating the dangerous effects of secondhand smoke both indoors and outdoors, Health Department Executive Director Dale Galassie set the example for many county municipalities currently considering smoking bans.

"As a health department, we have a commitment to provide a clean, healthy, productive and safe environment for all," Galassie said. "Smoking and secondhand smoke are well-documented health risks. By making our environment tobacco-free we are addressing these risks, while sending a message to our community."

Despite the obvious health benefits of a smoke-free environment, some employees of the Lake County Health Department's 24 facilities feel the policy is not fair to all because of an exception made for clients determined to be behaviorally fragile and clients of agencies who are receiving treatment in residential programs.

One health department employee, who did not want to be named, doesn't mind the policy or the philosophy behind it but bristles at the exceptions.

"I just feel like if you're going to do this, do it to everyone – don't leave out special groups," the employee said. "It's just not fair."

The employee speculated that certain clients and patients get to continue lighting up because patients rehabilitating from drug and alcohol addictions smoke a lot and its difficult to kick two habits at once.

Still, it is difficult to be held to a higher standard as an employee who smokes when faced with patients lighting up in specially designated areas.

In order to sustain a smoking habit, a health department employee would have to physically leave the campus as there is no smoking allowed on any department property including parking lots, grassy areas, and in all vehicles on the property.

Chief Warden Len Hackl of the Animal Department said he foresees no problems. "We've known this was coming for quite a while," he said. "The health department has been giving us reminders and they've provided smoking cessation meetings and classes. Only a few people here will be affected."

How will the die-hard smokers cope? One employee said: "I guess I'll have to get in my car and take a drive, that's the only way to do it. Gonna be chewing a lot of gum."

Even after she was diagnosed, Sarah continued, finishing a marathon the very next week. So when her hometown doctor told her she would have to wait three weeks to begin treatment, she wasn't content to lose precious time.

"I came to CTCA for a second opinion, and I got right in," she said. "When I arrived I was lost, bewildered. But the staff and the other patients helped me find my way. I left with an overwhelming feeling of, 'okay, we can take care of this.'"

She did take care of it, crossing the finish line with a victory over breast cancer. Call CTCA today for information about winning your race.

Boy allegedly shows pocketknife on bus

By JILLIAN COMPTON
jcompton@nwnewsgroup.com

JOHNSBURG – A 12-year-old Johnsburg boy faces criminal charges and school discipline for allegedly showing another student a pocketknife on a District 12 school bus.

Police charged the boy with unauthorized possession of a weapon at 10:50 a.m. March 24 at Johnsburg Junior High School, 2220 W. Church St., Chief Ken Rydberg said. School officials contacted police about the incident, which happened on the boy's ride home from school March 23.

"He was just showing it to another kid on the bus," Rydberg said, adding that he did not do it in a threatening manner. "Someone told the bus driver, and the bus driver turned him in."

McHenry County Court Service's juvenile section will decide whether to send the case to a diversion program or the juvenile court, Rydberg said. The boy's name was not released because of his age.

Meanwhile, the Dist. 12 school board could consider the matter at its April 11 meeting, School Board president Tom Liston said. School policy, outlined in the parent handbook, states that possession of dangerous weapons could lead to suspension or expulsion.

Encroachment on coyote land brings them closer to people

By HELEN MANSFIELD
hmansfield@nwnewsgroup.com

LAKE COUNTY — There's a new minority population popping up around Lake County this spring, coming from the wooded areas in the county that are being leveled for housing developments.

Jennifer Filipiac has worked as a forest preserve wildlife biologist for Lake County for five years. She said coyote sightings have been more prevalent this spring than in years past.

Filipiac said coyotes are moving into areas that they've never been before because their natural habitats are dwindling and they are becoming better at adapting to their urbanizing environment.

"Coyotes are living closer to people and it's going to stay that way," she said.

She can't give an accurate figure at the numbers of coyotes that are in Lake County, adding that animal populations run in cycles.

Coyotes are the largest wild predator in the Chicago region and serve a vital role in the balance of the local ecosystems.

Filipiac said she thought the actual number of coyotes had increased some and that they are just being noticed more this season than in the past.

In a press release from the Lake County Health Department, they state that many wild animals are more visible during late winter and early spring during breeding season and as they raise their young.

Along with berries, Filipiac said coyotes live mostly on small mammals, like mice and rabbits, but not necessarily a diet of "pets."

Coyotes will scavenge road kill, but they can't kill larger, healthy animals. Unfortunately, if a dog does come in contact with a coyote, especially during mating and rearing season, the dog could be viewed as a threat and killed.

Pets who interact with coyotes can inadvertently bring coyotes closer to humans, who they should be afraid of. Filipiac said her best advice for pet owners is to make sure they supervise their pets when they're out of doors.

Filipiac advises that if a coyote comes uncomfortably close to a human and their pet, they should yell at or even toss a rock in their direction.

What it means

To keep coyotes away
The Lake County Health Department/Community Health Center and the Lake County Forest Preserves recommend the following to avoid problems with coyotes, foxes and other wildlife.

- Do not encourage wildlife to come in or near your home by feeding them
- Keep pet food and water dishes inside, especially at night
- Turn on outside lights, make noise and observe the area for any sign of wildlife before letting your pets outside

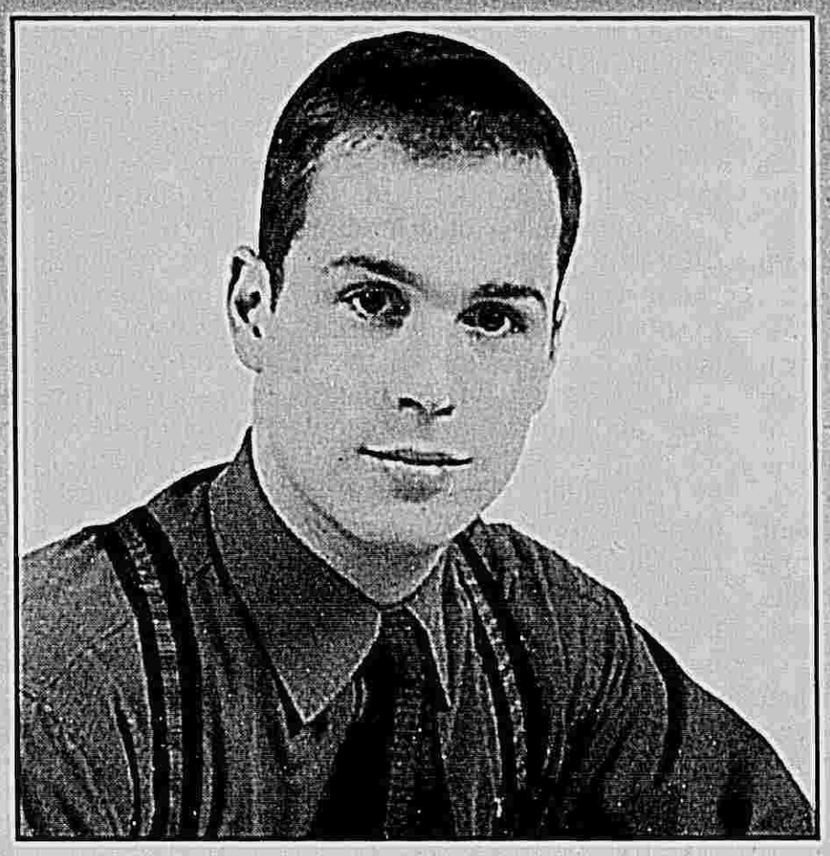

For more information, check out the Lake County Forest Preserves' Web site at www.LCFPD.org or contact Jennifer Filipiac, wildlife biologist, at (847) 968-3283.

Local voices chime in against the war

By EMILY PREVITI
epreviti@nwnewsgroup.com

Marge Haracz has not slept much since her son, Ray, deployed to Afghanistan early this month. Experts recommend reading old textbooks to help insomnia. She reads the dictionary. Close enough.

"I've only heard form him once since he left," she said.

When an estimated 7,000 people proceeded down Michigan Ave. in Chicago on Saturday night, Haracz, of Mundelein, braved temperatures in the teens to join the "Festival of Rights." The event demonstrated opposition to the war in Iraq, which reached its third anniversary this weekend.

Some participants carried signs in their hands; others, children on their shoulders. Twentysomethings texted friends scattered throughout the stream. From the high rises, observers waved into the night. A salon's employees had scrawled their allegiance to the action in hot pink across the beauty salon's windows.

Police officers lined the sidewalks and followed the parade, forming a barrier between participants and passive pedestrians and motorists.

Despite their riot gear and billy clubs, the cops exuded calmness. Drum beats and flashbulbs were the only things stormy about the atmosphere.

Vicki Bailyn, of Highland Park and Northshore Women for Peace, recalled that police had brandished guns at the demonstration that clogged Lake Shore Drive in 2003.

Andy Thayer, of the Chicago Coalition against War and Racism, said that city officials had split hair to "nix" past applications to demonstrate against the war in Iraq along Michigan Ave.

"They gave us grief over every single detail that wasn't specified in the permit," he said.

Still, officials relented and the parade happened.

Thayer suggested that, with the war's increasing unpopularity, city officials likely feared severe political consequences that could follow their refusal of another request to demonstrate along Michigan Ave.

"I have never been in favor of actions in Iraq and very dubious about our interventions in Afghanistan," said Haracz, who began to act against the war in Iraq in 2004, three years after the U.S. invaded Afghanistan. "I'm sorry, but my son's life is not worth guarding a bunch of drug lords," she added, referring to Afghanistan's status as the world's premier supplier of heroin.

Ray enlisted in the army at the age of 18. He had been studying political science at the College of Lake County before he deployed.

His mother said that he joined "not just to go to college [but because] he was looking for something different to do."

She said that the two do not discuss politics.

"He was raised...to believe that people need to do, in their life, what they need to do," she said.

Haracz, 51, was one of thousands protesting last weekend throughout the United States and the rest of the world, including Australia, Great Britain, Japan, Sweden and Turkey.

The administration has said that it will stick to its strategy despite global criticism and declining support at home.

The government has cited a long and broad perspective in defense of its decisions regarding the war. Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld describes the approach as one that will make sense long-term. Vice President Dick Cheney justifies to the war on the grounds that it will eventually eradicate terrorism.

In a two-minute address regarding the war's anniversary, President George Bush told reporters on Sunday "encouraged by progress" in Iraq.

Haracz said that, between feeder rallies and the main event downtown, her day lasted from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m.

Haracz participates in the Lake Area Peace Partners, which plans to hold .a peace fair in Mundelein during the summer. She said that the date is "tentatively set" for July 9.

She also spoke in Highland Park last Sunday, as part of events organized by the Northern Suburban Peace Initiative, which began at 10:30 a.m. on Saturday, March 18, and will continue through Sunday, March 26.

When Haracz spoke in Highland Park last Sunday, she cited the dictionary's definition of "war."

"I think that war, in general, is about money, power or land-grabbing," she said. "It's not about democracy."

What it means

Over 2,300 American military personnel and Defense Department civilians have died since forces from the United States invaded Iraq in 2003. Ayad Allawi, former prime minister of Iraq and current leader of a secular alliance of representatives in the National Assembly, has said that fifty or sixty Iraquis die daily.

30 YEARS AGO 1976

Six candidates were seeking three three-year terms on the Grayslake Grade School Board.

The election was scheduled April 10 at Grayslake Junior High School,

The terms of B.J. Tanner, Ray Deatherage and Paul Schulz expired. Schulz had filed for re-election.

Others on the ballot were Richard Johannsen, Casimir (Casey) Sobie, Dale Stelton, Ann Stanley and Cheryl Taube.

20 YEARS AGO 1986

Although a new 60-day superfund plan signed by then-President Ronald Reagan had authorized $150 million to be funneled into the cleanup program of some of the nation's worst toxic waste sites, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) was hesitant to how much additional funding would go towards funding a cleanup of the former Wauconda Sand and Gravel Landfill.

Financing for cleanup of the Wauconda landfill and other sites nationwide had come to a halt during the previous September, when the superfund expired.

15 YEARS AGO 1991

Route 12 construction was blamed for flooding in the Meyer's Bay subdivision on the south side of Fox Lake.

Grant Township Highway Commissioner Jack Kiesgen said engineers for the Illinois Department Transportation had disavowed responsibility.

"The road work has to be the cause," he said. "We've never had water here before.

130 acres under consideration

By STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

GRANT TOWNSHIP— Lake County Forest Preserve officials chose a Grant Township site as one of its first land purchases with influx of new funds.

The 130 acres is under consideration for purchase for $5,095,000. The Forest Preserve will have $70 million for land acquisition over the next four years thanks to refinancing approved last November.

The proposed name of the site is Tanager Kames Forest Preserve, officials said. It was approved at the full March 17 board meeting.

"It is a site of high quality of natural resources. We talked to the owner a year ago, but our funds to purchase land were low. We met with the owner a couple of times and said that we had a strong interest in the site. We reinstated talks after Jan. 1 after the refinancing of the bonds. It was a high priority, but we have a lot of high priority sites," said Tom Hahn, executive director of Lake County Forest Preserve.

The land is north of Big Hollow Road, west of Route 59, in the Chain O' Lakes with a view of Meyer's Bay on Pistakee Lake. It lies between Redhead Lake and Myers Bay of Pistakee Lake, and is one half mile north of the Illinois Department of Natural Resources' Volo Bog State Natural Area.

"It has water features that make it a unique site. Also, when the glaciers retreated, they left hills, or cames, and there are three of them. It also has marsh and oak woodlands, and sits on an aquatic edge of vegetation. It has a fringed sedge plant, which had not been seen in Lake County," Hahn said.

Lake County Forest Preserve Board President Bonnie Thomson Carter (R-Ingleside) praised the purchase.

"I am very excited about this proposed land buy and the opportunity to preserve a site that ranks among the most important natural resource sites in Lake County. It is hard to believe that a site like this still exists in Lake County. It is quiet and peaceful refuge for people and wildlife and the views are spectacular. Its location on the Chain O' Lakes waterway makes it an ideal setting for passive outdoor recreation, nature observation and wildlife habitat restoration."

Factors persuading the board to move to buy the land are: distinctive geology, high quality natural features, and the presence of several unique species occurring in large numbers indicating low levels of site disturbance.

The owners, the Kanzlers, considered development bids, but held the site for the Forest Preserve purchase.

The refunding approach still provides a property tax decrease of $18 per $200,000 of a home's existing market value in 2009. The land buy could be part of an additional 1,200 to 1,400 total acres. Capital development plan projects would also be included.

SWALCO Compost Bins available at various locations

Over 14,000 Lake County residents know that "compost happens," and now it's even easier to try composting at home thanks to the Solid Waste Agency of Lake County's (SWALCO) compost bin sales program. Residents can choose from two different compost bins at locations and dates all across Lake County.

Both models accept food scraps, grass clippings, leaves and other organic wastes. The "Earth Machine" rests in a typical backyard while waiting to be manually stirred by its owner. It holds approximately 1 cubic yard of material and sells for $20.

The "Tumbler" is a barrel-shaped container that rotates around a metal stand when gently pushed. It holds just over 7 cubic feet of material and sells for $70. Both models are easy to operate, adequately sized to accommodate a typical families' organic food waste, and come with a 10-year warranty. The main difference lies in the amount of time it takes to generate usable compost - three weeks for the Tumbler versus six to eight weeks for the Earth Machine.

Composting at home requires a mix of materials high in nitrogen (such as grass clippings and leaves) and materials high in carbon (such as vegetable and fruit peelings). Each composter comes with an educational booklet that describes the process of getting started and producing high quality compost.

Compost bin sale dates and locations are listed below. For more information, check out the SWALCO website (www.swalco.org) or contact the SWALCO office at (847) 336-9340.

Community needs to be identified

• WINCHESTER HOUSE

munity and the development of new revenue streams.

In order to become more competitive and gain a better position in the market, Weibeler envisions Winchester House encompassing a greater continuum of care by meeting the needs of different populations such as those who need short-term rehab, wound care, and other needs still yet to be identified in the community.

"I think county buildings traditionally are looked at as a place to serve the poor and they are, and we will continue to always do that and it will be a primary focus," he said.

"But there's also opportunity to say we can serve a different segment of the Lake County population. We can still follow our mission but expand out to different groups."

"We need to develop programs and marketing initiatives to let people know we're not just a retirement home. There are other needs we can meet that aren't necessarily long term, like knee replacements and hip replacements that we can do more with."

Despite being at his post for only a few weeks, Weibeler sees a bright future.

"I'm just thrilled to be here, I love it," he said. "I keep telling people, 'I'm inheriting a great team, a great reputation.' These revenue enhancement pieces are going to be attainable because of that. I just think we'll get focused and make it happen. I have the utmost confidence that you'll start to see some changes pretty quickly."

Convertible craze a springtime tradition

Each spring, drivers everywhere see the mercury rising on a nearby thermometer and know it's time to put an end to the winter hibernating and hit the road. Many choose to ride the highway in style, jumping into a convertible, putting the top down and enjoying the welcoming warm air. With that in mind, here's a guide to some of spring's hottest new convertibles. They will, no doubt, make your springtime road trips enjoyable outings you won't soon forget.

• Model: 2006 Mustang GT Deluxe Convertible.
• MSRP: $30,660

Perhaps America's most recognizable muscle car and convertible, the 2006 Ford Mustang is a return to the car's classic roots, with a sleek design reminiscent of the classic 1960s models that made the car so popular and recognizable.

Still one of Ford's most popular makes, the Mustang comes in eight different models, including four convertibles, ranging from the lowest-priced V6 Deluxe Convertible (base price: $24,735) to the most expensive GT Premium Convertible ($31,840).

The GT Deluxe Convertible comes standard with a 300-horsepower V8 engine with the option of an automatic or manual 5-speed transmission. For people worried about the gas costs with a V8, the GT Deluxe Convertible is relatively fuel efficient, getting 17 mpg in the city and 23 mpg on the highway.

A slew of extras will raise the price tag significantly, but the Mustang remains arguably the most identifiable American sports car to this day.

• Model: 2006 Mazda Miata MX-5
• MSRP: $21,995

For those looking to spend a little less, the Miata is a more affordable option that still offers a fun drive for spring and summer nights.

While not as powerful as some of the other convertibles on the market, the Miata is certainly right there when it comes to being sporty, as its small frame can attest.

The 4-cylinder, 170- horsepower engine offers ample power, and its sportiness definitely makes it one of the more enjoyable convertibles on the market.

The Miata is also one of the better convertibles when it comes to gas mileage, getting 25 mpg in the city and 30 mpg on the highway.

The MX-5 convertible is offered with some great standard features, including an AM/FM/CD stereo system that comes equipped with speed-sensing automatic volume control, meaning you won't need to adjust your volume when whizzing down the highway with the top down.

Many other options come standard as well, making the MX-5 one of the best buys today on the convertible market.

• Model: 2006 Volkswagen Beetle Convertible
• MSRP: $21,920

Another classic convertible is the VW Bug, a car that's perfect for weekend road trips or as a first car for a newly licensed teenager.

With a 2.5-liter, 150-horsepower engine, the VW Bug doesn't boast the horsepower of its convertible competitors, but the Bug is not the kind of car typically bought by people looking to burn up the nearest highways.

The 5-speed manual transmission is standard, so those hoping for an automatic can expect to pay extra.

Like its fellow affordable and compact convertibles, the VW Bug also boasts better gas mileage, getting 22 mpg in the city and 30 mpg on the highway.

Some of the Bug's features are attractive as well and won't add much to the car's bottom-line price. Among the features available are satellite radio (XM or Sirius), a built-in MP3 player, or a 6-disc remote CD player.

Such options can ensure that you'll enjoy cruising along with the top down.

• Model: 2006 Jaguar XK8 Convertible
• MSRP: $75,495

Those who are looking for true luxury where price is no object might want to consider the Jaguar XK8 Convertible, which comes with a 4.2-liter, 90-degree V8 engine and can go from 0 to 60 miles per hour in 6.3 seconds.

The XK8 also has a maximum speed of 155 mph, a character trait that puts it in unique company with respect to convertible sports car performance.

With a nearly 20-gallon fuel tank, the XK8 is also somewhat fuel efficient in spite of its engine's V8 status, getting 18 mpg in the city and 26 mpg on the highway, nearly matching the Mazda Miata's highway fuel efficiency despite boasting an engine that's twice the size.

While the mileage might be a near match between the XK8 and the Miata, no such match exists with respect to accessories, as those looking to upgrade their XK8 from the base model can expect to drop several thousand extra dollars depending on what they want.

Again, though, the XK8 and its 390-horsepower engine aren't built for those people worrying about price.

Chinese send money for AUGS trip

By TARA CLIFTON
tclifton@nwnewsgroup.com

The Antioch Upper Grade School Senior Band was able to march in New York City through the generosity of the community.

But it was the kindness of people half a world away that touched band parents' hearts.

Janet Reynolds of Antioch traveled to the Nanjing Children Social Welfare Institute nearly 14 years ago to adopt her daughter, Bailan, a clarinet player at AUGS.

Reynolds has kept in contact with the organization since then, she said, and once they discovered that the middle school needed to raise $35,000 to send its band to the St. Patrick's Day Parade in March, they were anxious to help out.

The school received Monday an envelope containing 800 Chinese Yuan, intending to help the band students travel to the Big Apple. Staffers, children and even the president of the Nanjing orphanage contributed. One Yuan equals roughly 12 American cents.

"I was just blown away by this," Reynolds said. The children's home barely has enough money to keep its doors open, let alone send some of it overseas, Reynolds said.

"It's such wonderful generosity," Reynolds said.

Even though the Yuan came about a week after the band's trip, Reynolds said she will still donate the money to the band.

Residents poured their heart out to the students, donating money through many fundraisers. The band raised more than $35,000, exceeding their goal.

But it was the Chinese orphanage's gift that touched Reynolds' heart the most.

"It's a small world," she said.

Gurnee to welcome state's first Moe's Southwest Grill franchise

By EMILY PREVITI
epreviti@nwnewsgroup.com

GURNEE – When Mary Stuckrath makes a business decision, she asks tough questions.

"Who doesn't like burritos and tacos?" she said of the thinking that guided her foray into the fast-casual food industry.

Stuckrath, of Lake Villa, runs a consulting business with her husband. On a visit to Alabama, she visited a southwestern restaurant called Moe's Southwest Grill.

Impressed by the freshness and healthiness of the fare (Moe's claims to prepare food without freezers, microwaves, animal fat, lard, or MSG), she began to research the franchise.

She found explosive growth. The performance has been recognized by "Inc. Magazine", which ranks Moe's 11 of 500 fastest-growing companies. Moe's fell sixth on "Fast-Casual Magazine's 100 Top Movers and Shakers."

Stuckrath also interviewed more than 30 franchisees. She found unanimous satisfaction and encouragement.

Stuckrath said that owners do not have flexibility to adjust aspects of the menu or atmostphere.

However, the formula seems to work in 284 restaurants nationwide.

The menu names its items with quotes from television shows, from "Happy Days" to "Seinfeld", as well as movies, from "The Nutty Professor" to "My Cousin Vinny."

A soundtrack filled with classic rock by deceased artists and shouts of "Welcome to Moe's!" from employees, add to the "relaxed, friendly atmosphere" that defines the vision of Martin Sprock, who started Moe's in 2000.

Moe's, where meals cost around $8, does not group itself with Chili's, located on Grand Ave. in Gurnee, nor Taco Bell, which has sites in Gurnee, Lindenhurst, Waukegan and Grayslake.

Robin Ray, media contact for Moe's said that "I offer the convenience and value of a fast food restaurant, but the quality of food and service of a casual restaurant, which puts it in the fast-casual category."

Stuckrath said she expects the reastaurant to open in the summer. It will be one of several new business in Prairie Crossings, a developing retail area off of Dilley's Road, just north of Grand Ave.

This Moe's restaurant will be the first in the state. The establishment will serve margaritas, wine and beer.

BURNING ISSUES

- Martinsville is a rough track, but the bad feelings don't usually linger afterward in the manner of Bristol. The best example? The sportsmanlike remarks of Jimmie Johnson after Tony Stewart roughed him up a bit on the way to victory in the DirecTV 500. Remember the movie "Days of Thunder"? In the immortal words of Harry Hogge, "He didn't wreck you, Cole. He rubbed you. And rubbin' is racin.'"
- Casey Mears has made it through a pair of short-track races, and he's still in the top 10 – just barely – in Nextel Cup points. Now he has a chance to rebuild some momentum.
- No current driver is more versatile than Stewart, who can count among his 25 victories six short-track victories, five on road courses, one in a Daytona "plate race" and 13 on intermediate tracks. Those percentages come close to matching the composition of the schedule.
- Stewart has led the most laps in three consecutive races at Martinsville. He's won at least one race in eight consecutive seasons, and Joe Gibbs Racing has produced at least one victory in 14 straight years.
- Before Martinsville, Stewart hadn't led the most laps and won the race in question since Watkins Glen in August 2005.
- Dale Earnhardt Jr. showed a stubborn persistence that was reminiscent of his father by driving a car that had been wrecked on the second lap and finishing fourth with it.
- Jeff Gordon has finished in the top 10 in six consecutive Martinsville races. He won four of them, including a 2005 sweep.
- All four Hendrick Motorsports drivers finished in the top 10 at Martinsville. Gordon was second, Jimmie Johnson third, Kyle Busch fifth and Brian Vickers eighth.

ROBBY GORDON NEXTEL CUP SERIES NO. 7 MENARDS CHEVROLET

Going It Alone

Ever the maverick, Gordon looks for success with a single-car team

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

BRISTOL, Tenn. — Kasey Kahne's victory on March 20 at Atlanta Motor Speedway was spectacular, but for the purposes of the season as a whole, a 10th-place finish on Sunday was comparable in terms of significance.

Kahne is second in the Nextel Cup points standings after five races. A year ago, he finished 23rd. By coming up with a career-best finish at Bristol, Kahne once again staked his claim to a significant place in the championship race.

"We've been able to finish these races and bring the cars back in one piece," he said. "I wanted a top-15, and if we got a top-10, that was great. We finished 10th and that was cool."

> "Why try it? I have the ability to attract sponsors, people and build cars as good or better than anybody in the business."

Becoming consistent was and is Kahne's chief goal this year. The 2005 season was a disappointment, though it was distinguished by the young driver's first victory. Other than the May 14, 2005, victory in Richmond, Va., the 25-year-old driver from Enumclaw, Wash., finished in the top five only four other times, though he did manage to finish second to Tony Stewart in the Allstate 400 at Indianapolis.

Recalling the 2005 season, Kahne said, "I was happy when it was over. I'm usually not like that. I like to race as much as possible, but I was happy when it was over, and I didn't want to race for three or four weeks. I remember the year before, when the season was over, I still wanted to be racing."

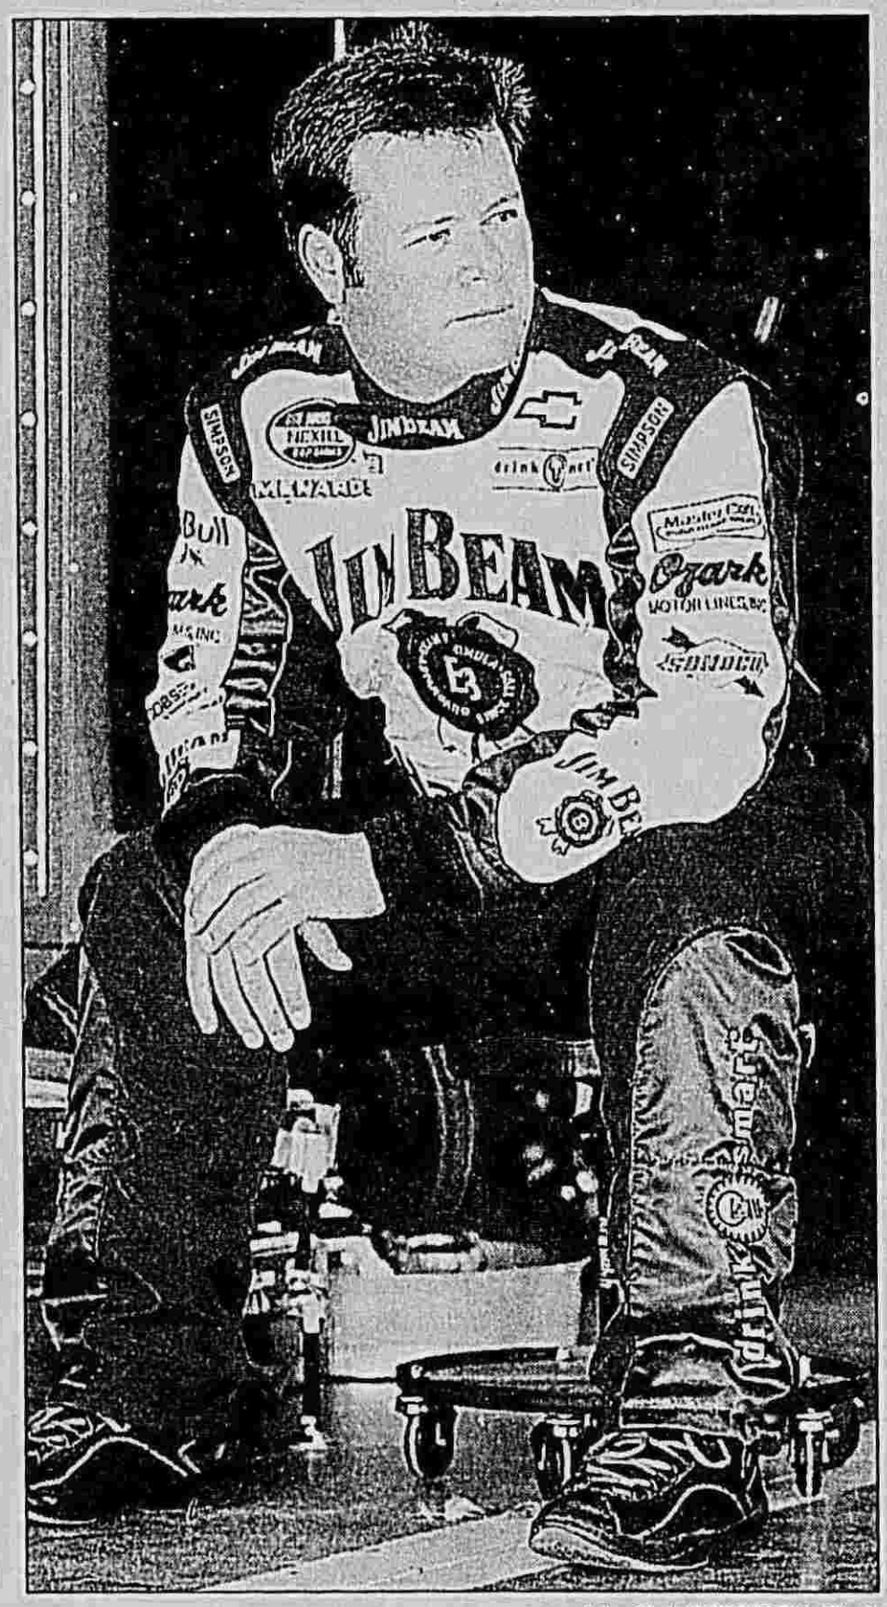

When he was Raybestos Rookie of the Year in 2004, Kahne finished 10 positions higher in the points standings than he did in his second season. He finished second five times. The victory was one of relatively few highlights in his second season.

Kahne took a considerable portion of the blame upon himself.

"Some of the things I did, some of the crashes I was in, I didn't need to be in," he said. "I forced the issue. I knew my car was on the edge of crashing, and I went past that edge and crashed. That was pretty bad driving, really. I felt like I made a lot of mistakes with bad race cars. I should have just handled those cars and drove to the finish.

"If we had just finished races, we probably would have finished five or six or seven spots better in the standings. I feel like I grew up a lot during the year."

Early indications are that Kahne has learned his lessons well.

Baseball Preview

Annie Christie - achristie@nwnewsgroup.com

Carmel's Tim Josupait (25) tags out Warren's Matt Limbert (10) at home plate denying Warren a run. Carmel went on to win 9-8.

CARMEL

Head Coach: Chuck Gandolfi
Last Season: 30-8, 14-4 East Suburban Catholic

Corsair coach Chuck Gandolfi has built a veritable dynasty after 17 years of coaching and this year might be the one for Carmel. Gandolfi is returning multiple talented players from last year's regional championship team.

Seniors Jeff Greco and Matt Diedrich provide one of the most powerful 1-2 punches in the area. Greco's bat produced a .346 batting average with 27 RBI and 4 home runs a year ago while Diedrich boasted an 8-3 record, 65 strikeouts with a 1.39 ERA.

Diedrich heads a ridiculous pitching roster with Tim Josupait, Greco, Jonathan Miller, Jordan Sivertsen, Sean McCreary, John Brennan, Cory Stonelake, Zach Amrein and Tim Johnson all returning to the Corsair bullpen.

Outside of Northwestern signee Diedrich, the rest of Carmel's pitchers are multi-talented with Josupait as catcher and Greco at third. The Corsairs have more than pitchers with right fielder Mike Morrissey and Brian Hendricks at first.

GRAYSLAKE CENTRAL

Head Coach: Troy Whalen
Last Season: 17-20, 9-11 Fox Valley

Losing records can be deceiving in the world of high school baseball as the Rams were plagued with injuries all season long, but still managed to get to the regional championship game last season.

While they weren't able to break the .500 mark, they did manage to advance deep into the playoffs despite losing pitcher Doug Hanson to injury. Hanson boasted a 90 mile an hour fastball and was slated as a preseason favorite, but was lost early in the season.

If the Rams can avoid following in Hanson's footsteps, Grayslake's strength will again lie within it pitching staff. Valparaiso-signee Micah Yarbrough will serve as the ace along with juniors Gerry Martinez (5-4, 2.63 ERA, 30 K's) and Steve Kuligowski returning to the roster.

Despite losing multiple college players to graduation, the Rams do have seniors Corey Jeffers, Nick Fabbri, Brett Miller, Andy Janik and junior Pat Garvey to provide the bats for Whalen's revamped team.

LIBERTYVILLE

Head Coach: Jim Schurr
Last Season: 23-12, 7-3 NSC-Lake

While most area teams are focusing on their respective pitching staffs this season, the Wildcats will be spending their time on embarrassing pitchers. This season promises to be an offensive feast with seniors Chris Andrews and Matt Dittman.

Dittman led the team with a .477 batting average while Andrews batted .422 last season. Other returning bats include Eric Grant, Matt O'Connor and David Woodbridge.

Pitching may be a bit of a question mark for Libertyville, but senior Eric Cusek hopes to answer that with a solid selection of pitches in his arsenal.

If there's anything that Libertyville won't want to repeat from last year's impressive 23-12 campaign is its quick end. The Wildcats were shown the door by an upstart Grayslake Rams team in the first round and coach Jim Schurr will surely want a deeper run this time around.

MUNDELEIN

Head Coach: Todd Parola
Last Season: 26-10, 7-3 NSC-Lake

What a year 2005 was for the Mustangs. After struggling to a 12-20 mark the year before, Mundelein put together a stellar regular season and earned a sectional championship berth.

A large contingent of seniors is returning to make sure the Mustangs don't slide after last season's impressive work. Returning players include Mark Maday, Ian Sanchez, Ryan Ricci, Brian Betti, Kevin Mitchell, Adam Ketzner, Kyle Barber, Cameron Adams and Brian Martin.

Ricci was impressive on the mound, posting a 5-0 record as a starter. Help on the mound for Ricci comes from Adams who has an impressive arsenal of off-speed pitches.

While 2006 should be a good season for Mustangs with Maday, Sanchez and Ricci returning to the lineup, Mundelein lost major talent last season. Monmouth College seemingly raided Parola's roster as former Mustangs Matt Tye, Kevin Sashko and Brian Wilhelm now play for the Fighting Scots.

ANTIOCH

Head Coach: Paul Petty
Last Season: 16-20, 3-7 NSC-Lake

The Sequoits lost quite a bit of talent last season with the graduation of all-area stars Mike Fuchs and Nate Hughes (.443 batting average!), but there's plenty more where that came from in Antioch.

The first name that comes to mind is Chandler Kent. Kent, a four-year varsity ballplayer, is as complete as a baseballer can be these days as he brings defensive skills at both the shortstop and pitcher positions and is a good hitter.

Kent is not alone in the Sequoit stable with pitchers Bryan Vos, John Heneberry, Frank Fracek and southpaw Dan Goggin. Antioch's bullpen isn't the only area with senior veterans Justin Brown, Frank Fracek, Brandon Geweke and Mike Sinkovec returning to the mix.

A move to the NSC-Prairie Division could provide some interesting match-ups against former teammates at Lakes High.

GRANT

Head Coach: Mike Mizwicki
Last Season: 7-25, 5-5 NSC-Prairie

To sum up Grant's 7-25 run as tough would be a massive understatement, but coach Mike Mizwicki is looking to turn things around in Fox Lake. Despite losing Eric Lostroscio, the Bulldogs gain an experienced pitching staff.

Senior pitcher Matt Akers leads a team of young arms including Dan Andrews, Kyle Stroup and Brian Swanson. Senior outfielder Matt Moss heads up the Bulldog bats with Anthony Kaskadden at short and utility man Frank Mitello.

Kaskadden carries the most varsity experience despite his junior class standing with three years of varsity experience under his belt. Hopefully, Mizwicki will have his wishes granted this season.

LAKES

Head Coach: Mark Tschappat
Last Season: n/a

One word can sum up the Lakes Eagles baseball team this season: youth. Coach Mark Tschappat is walking into a situation where he has to completely build a team. Unlike some of Lakes' other teams this season, Tschappat will be forced to field a roster without many players with valuable experience while still with the Antioch program.

The first building block for any team will be pitching and junior Kevin Lewis will serve as the Eagles' top option.

ROUND LAKE

Head Coach: Howard Conkling
Last Season: 9-23, 4-6 NSC-Prairie

Unlike past campaigns, the Panthers are returning a large number of experienced players to the baseball field this season. While the loss of .495 hitter Mike Hughes will be tough for any coach to swallow, Conkling does have a lot of hope thanks to an experienced roster.

Senior pitcher/infielder Brian Mendralla should lead the way along with fellow seniors Nick Anchor, Travis Cook, Ryan Jagert, Brad Kolff, Andy Patnou and Tim Theobald heading the Round Lake roster. As for the pitching, Mendralla will be added to Patnou, Jagert and Cook to make up the Panther bullpen.

WARREN

Head Coach: Dar Townsend
Last Season: 19-12, 5-5 NSC-Lake

The move up to varsity can be a tough one, but junior pitcher Mario Perez took it like a man last season, finishing 3-3 with an impressive 1.36 ERA and racked up 70 strikeouts. Those numbers are something Blue Devil coach Dar Townsend can build a team around.

Perez, along with senior hurler Brian Behnke provide quite a frightening pair of starters for Warren opponents. The Blue Devils also boast a good defensive lineup with catcher Mark Deason, outfielder Marc Mirretti, shortstop Vinny Vitale and John Weil.

WAUCONDA

Head Coach: Bill Sliker

Last Season: 10-23, 5-5 NSC-Prairie

Wauconda might finally be able to find its step this season after logging a second place finish in the Prairie Division last season. The road to a division title will lie within its experienced roster with seven seniors donning the purple and gold this season.

Coach Bill Sliker has almost a complete field of seniors on his hands with pitcher/first baseman Tyler Hopfauf, second baseman Scott Jones, first baseman/catcher Cole Munson, to go with outfielders Brett Glavey and Joe Raupp.

Hopfauf should be Wauconda's top arm while Glavey brings plenty of experience to the table after spending his entire high school baseball life on the varsity roster.

WAUKEGAN
Head Coach: Craig DeLost
Last Season: 11-21, 3-12 Central Suburban South

Last season could definitely be remembered as a roller coaster with multiple close games. However, the direction of the team has definitely been "up" as the Bulldogs suffered through multiple 1-win campaigns since 2000.

Graduation hit Waukegan hard last year with Joe Labus, Eric Krueger, Jordan French and Phil Sims no longer with the team. Waukegan can build this year's hopes around senior Ryan MacManaman, who was an All-CSL selection last season. DeLost should also do well with seniors Marshall Hogan and Eric Jaburek who both logged numerous innings with Waukegan last season.

Junior shortstop Armando Cruz could be another option for the Bulldogs as he had an impressive summer season with the Waukegan Redbirds American Legion team and he should continue to develop as a player this season.

On The Sidelines

Guilty no more

Daniel J. Patrick

I finally did something last weekend that might disgust other sports fans: I went to Wrestlemania. No, I didn't go as a reporter or a mocker, but as a full-fledged wrestling fan.

Hillbilly jokes may ensue given the fact that I am both a native Hoosier and a professional wrestling fan. But I don't chew tobacco, I don't have a NASCAR tattoo, nor have I ever spent a single penny on Larry the Cable Guy or Jeff Foxworthy paraphernalia.

I went to Wrestlemania and I loved every minute of it.

Because pro wrestling has predetermined winners and soap opera-esque storylines, I've always mentioned my addiction in the same woeful manner an alcoholic speaks at an AA meeting. Well, I'm guilty no more.

As I watched Shawn Michaels jump off a ladder onto Vince McMahon's betrashcanned torso (yes, he had a trashcan over his head), I realized that I'm not going to apologize or even debate the athleticism from my formerly "guilty" pleasure.

I am guilty no more because there are plenty of sports that many fans turn their noses up to. But is there any person who truly has been anointed with the task of designating what "Sports" truly are?

Competitive cheerleading is a perfect example because many have questioned its place underneath the sports umbrella. Despite the extensive amount of gymnastics skill and work that goes into routines, it is shunned by mainstream sports fans who gladly pour their paychecks into the pockets of the NFL, NBA and MLB.

However, if "mainstream" is defined by fan following, there are numerous problems with this definition. Auto racing and golf both have had their place within the "Sports" genre questioned time and again despite millions of rabid fans across the country.

Popularity is never a good lens for sports because women's professional leagues have failed time and again despite the skill of the competitors. Major League Soccer is still searching for an identity even though soccer is one of the purest sports as defined by the primal sporting factors of athleticism and the goal of "Putting the Rock in the Hole."

If simple athleticism is used as a filter, strength competitions come into play, and of course, cheerleading and pro wrestling certainly fit the bill. No one ever doubts the athletic prowess of a basketball player drilling a long three, but you'd be hard-pressed to find a basketball star who can do half of the stunts a cheerleader does every day.

Yet just because a cheerleader traditionally finds her-(or him-) self on the sidelines of the games, there's no place for them in the wide world of sports?

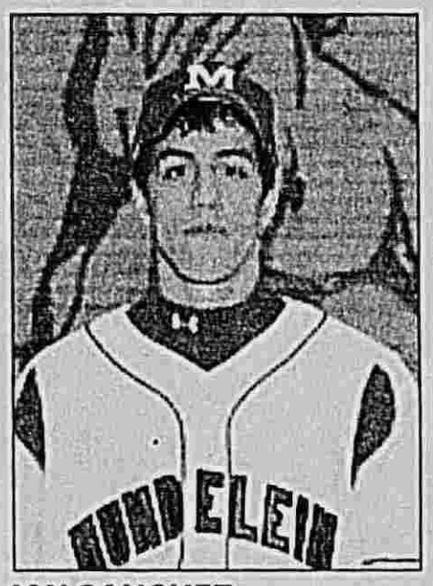

So what is the filter? Whatever you want it to be.

Here in Illinois, the IHSA recognizes badminton, bowling, chess, debate, drama and group interpretation, journalism and music competitions. This is the same organization that sets up basketball, baseball, football, swimming and volleyball tournaments around the state and if they recognize badminton and bowling as sports, maybe we all should follow suit.

Whether it's auto racing, bowling, badminton, cheerleading, curling, dungeons and dragons, golf, table tennis or pro wrestling, nobody can deny your rights as a sports fan, regardless of what the "sport" might be. If there's competition and/or athleticism involved, don't be ashamed to break out the face paint, make your signs and take your place amongst the few, the proud, the fans.

As for my love of the WWE, all I have to say is this: "My name is Daniel, and I am a wrestling fan."

Athletes of the Week

IAN SANCHEZ

Mustang coach Todd Parola has a winner on his hands with pitcher Ian Sanchez. Sanchez was phenomenal in Mundelein's 13-1 win over the Lakes Eagles Tuesday. The night before, Sanchez also showed his batting prowess going 2-for-2 with a double in a 13-7 win over Maine East.

KARIANN HILL

Grant had a field day at the expense of the Wauconda Bulldogs last Tuesday thanks to the bats of Kariann Hill (3-for-4, double), Ashley Haselow and Ashley Precht. Thanks to the big trio, the Bulldogs came away with a big 15-3 win over Wauconda for their second win of the season.

MIKE MORRISSEY

Just one week into the season, the Carmel Corsairs are showing why they are ranked amongst the state's best with a perfect 6-0 record. Senior outfielder Mike Morrissey was a big part of a 12-2 win over the Grayslake Central Rams, nabbing two hits including a triple.

Did You Know?

Libertyville ranks in the top 25 in Illinois records for most wins in a season with 36 thanks to a 36-4 mark in 1996. The Wildcats also rank no. 12 on the all-time IHSA list with 24 consecutive regular season wins in 1995.

Carmel also ranks on the all-time list with 35 wins with a 35-6 mark in 1999. The Corsairs also rank no. 8 for the longest regular season win streak with 26 consecutive wins in 1989.

Mundelein ranks no. 8 for runs scored in a single season, belting home 412 runs in 2002. Libertyville is a repeat offender in the top 50 with marks set in 1989 (399 runs), 1995 (357), 1996 (355) and 1997 (363).

Mundelein holds the area record for home runs in a season with 41 in 2002.

Wrong side of the tracks

Not every record is a good one and there are a few area teams that would rather forget their place in history.

Grant and Mundelein hold the dubious honor for falling victim to Dundee-Crown's suffocating defense and pitching in 2001. The Bulldogs' and Mustangs' collective opponent holds the record for the most consecutive scoreless innings (31) in the AA state tournament.

Wauconda is also on the wrong side of an IHSA record as Joliet Catholic set an AA mark for most strikeouts in a tournament game against the Bulldogs in 1981.

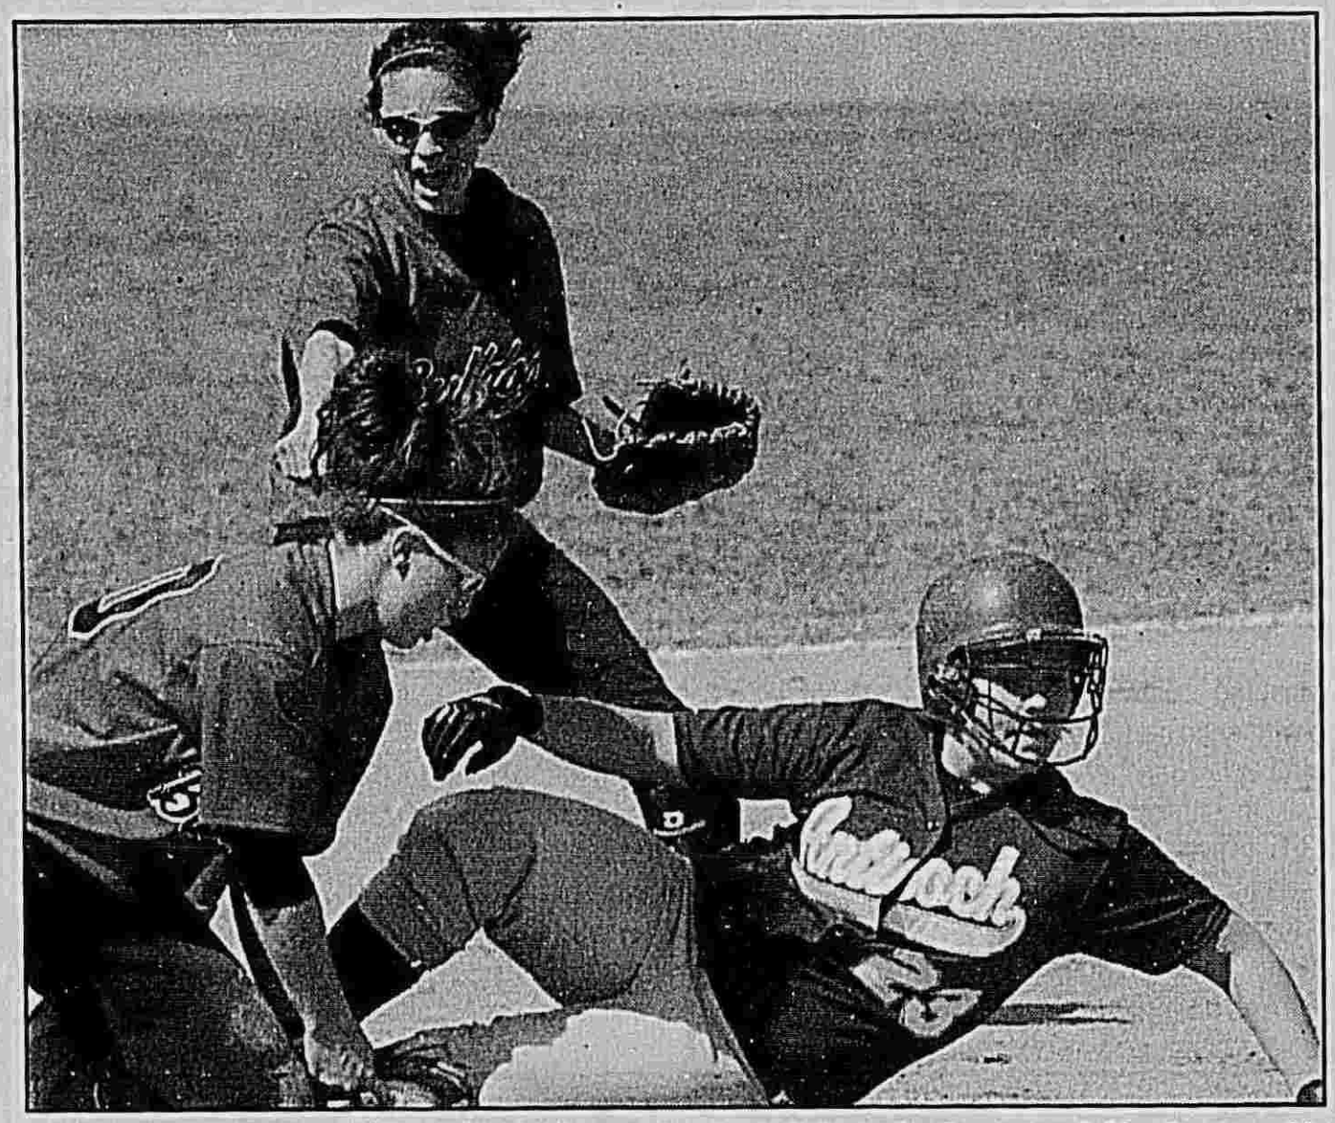

Bling, bling

Area IHSA State Championship appearances Carmel, Libertyville and Mundelein may hold the batting titles, but who's got the rings? Waukegan. Split between the Waukegan Township and Waukegan West, the Bulldogs and Pirates formed a collective dynasty that lasted for two decades before consolidation came into town.

1960 – Waukegan Township High lost to York, 5-4
1971 – Waukegan Township High wins against Macon, 4-2
1982 – Waukegan West shuts out Collinsville, 2-0

Lakers promise quality team

The Lakers will be competing across the area. One of the team's top priorities is to become a pillar within the Lake County area with strong role models for the youth and affordable and exciting family entertainment.

The 2006 season will highlight kids free 12 and under, with affordable ticket prices for adults and reduced ticket prices for students. The 2005 season of the International Basketball League consisted of 17 teams across the country. All 17 teams completed their seasons and will return for 2006. The league has announced the expansion of eleven teams for the upcoming season, Lake County, Illinois being one of the select 11.

The IBL places an emphasis on fast-paced games, limiting time-outs and featuring a shortened shot clock in order to speed up games. As a result, big scoring numbers are the rule rather than the exception.

In 170 games across the league last season, IBL fans saw an average of 127 points per team in each contest in only two hours time. The IBL motto is more speed, more points, more excitement.

Actor Peter Gallagher

Q I would like to know if Peter Gallagher of The O.C. and David Gallagher of 7th Heaven are related.
—Shirley Bumgarner, Statesville, N.C.

No, the two Gallaghers are not related. Peter, 50, is the only member of his family who ended up in the acting business. He's been on Broadway (Guys and Dolls) and in films (American Beauty, The Player, While You Were Sleeping and Sex, Lies and Videotape), and now plays lawyer Sandy Cohen on The O.C. "I love my role," he says. "It's such a nice change of pace after playing so many smarmy guys." David, 21, got his start as a child model in print ads, later moving to TV commercials, movies (Look Who's Talking Now, Angels in the Endzone, Phenomenon) and finally a breakthrough role on the WB TV series 7th Heaven.

Q Is Officer Byrd on Judge Judy an actor or a sworn officer?
—Don Whitehead, Sequim, Wash.

Petri Hawkins Byrd, who keeps order during the televised courtroom proceedings, is indeed a sworn officer. As a matter of fact, he was Judge Judy's court officer for a time when she presided over family court in New York, before getting her own TV show. When he heard his old boss was going on the air, he sent her a letter inquiring if she needed a bailiff. She did, and invited him to come aboard.

Officer Byrd keeps order in the court on TV's Judge Judy.

Q What can you tell me about CNN anchor Kyra Phillips, including how she met her husband, Miles O'Brien?
—R.R. Barrett Jr., Grafton, Vt.

Actually, Phillips is not married to Miles O'Brien. They were, however, anchor partners for six years until O'Brien moved to New York to head up American Morning last June, and Phillips remained in Atlanta to anchor CNN's Live From. Phillips, 37, whose first interview was with Dr. Seuss for a school newspaper she started in the fourth grade, loves her work. "There's never a dull moment," she says. "The most rewarding aspect is when I do an interview that empowers or helps someone." She has been married five years and loves traveling and golf.

Q My brother and I disagree on a movie character. He starred in The Thing With Two Heads with Rosie Grier, and he also was the guy in a wheelchair who got eaten by frogs in Frogs. My brother says it's Robert Young from TV's Marcus Welby.
—Richard Murphy Jr., Columbus, Ga.

The actor you refer to is Ray Milland, a solid, second-string Hollywood performer who never rose to superstardom, but who certainly had his memorable movie moments—as the blue-blooded Bostonian dad opposed to the romance in Love Story, as the villain in Dial M for Murder, and his Oscar-winning turn as an alcoholic writer in The Lost Weekend. Later in his career, he became a go-to guy for a string of low-budget horror and science-fiction drive-in fare, including the two you remember from the 1970s. Milland also had his own TV comedy series (Meet Mr. McNulty) for a few years in the '50s. He died of lung cancer in 1986.

Peeps are Just Born . . .

by SUSAN STETS

With the push of a button, John Dittbrenner adds sugar, corn syrup and gelatin to a 250-gallon stainless steel kettle at the Just Born Inc. candy factory in Bethlehem, Pa. (pop. 71,329). After bringing the ingredients to a boil, Dittbrenner pours vanilla flavoring into the sugary blend that's destined to become the company's trademark confection, Marshmallow Peeps.

Once the batch cools, it's machine-whipped to a fluffy froth and squeezed through tubes onto a large sugarcoated conveyor belt, forming legions of plump, white marshmallow chicks with curlicues for beaks and tails. The newborn Peeps then ride through a wind tunnel that coats the sticky chicks with a sparkling veneer of pink, lavender, blue, white or yellow sugar before they are packaged and shipped to stores around the nation and world.

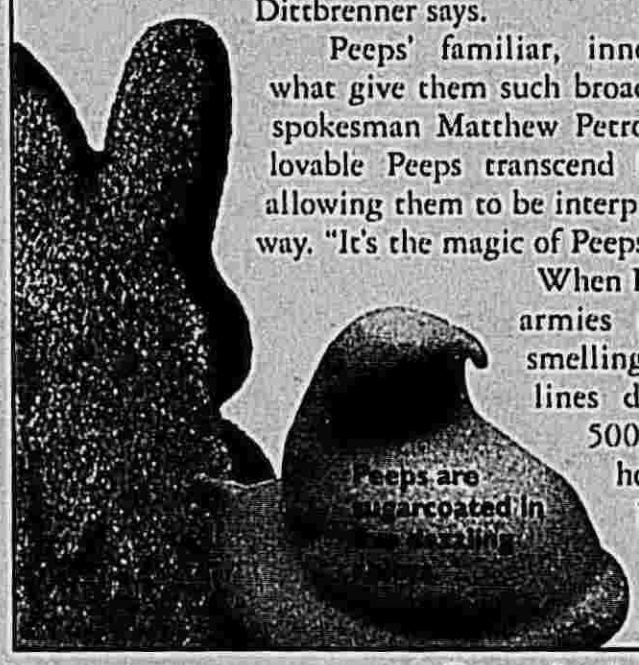

Legions of Peeps roll off the Just Born assembly line each year in Bethlehem, Pa.

The cute fluffy critters have become essential items in Easter baskets for more than half a century. "It makes me feel good that so many people like them," says Dittbrenner, 70, a Just Born employee for 48 years.

Just Born also makes Mike and Ike, Hot Tamales, Zours and jelly beans.

Each year, Dittbrenner and five other Just Born cooks produce enough marshmallow to create 1.2 billion Peeps shaped like Easter chicks, bunnies and eggs; Halloween pumpkins, bats and ghosts; Valentine hearts, Christmas trees and snowmen. "That's a lot of marshmallow," Dittbrenner says.

Peeps' familiar, innocent expressions are what give them such broad appeal, says company spokesman Matthew Petronio. The simple, cute, lovable Peeps transcend language and culture, allowing them to be interpreted in a very personal way. "It's the magic of Peeps," Petronio adds.

When Peeps are in production, armies of the puffy, sweet-smelling candies ride assembly lines day and night at the 500,000-square-foot plant, home to Just Born since 1932. That's when Sam Born, who founded the company in 1923, moved his operation from Brooklyn, N.Y. By then his brothers-in-law, Irv and Jack Shaffer, had joined the family business.

Early on, Born touted his product's freshness with the slogan "just born."

Before 1953, the Rodda Candy Co. of Lancaster, Pa., made its own version of winged Peeps chicks by hand-squeezing marshmallow through a pastry tube. They even painted the eyes on by hand. After cousins Bob Born and Jack Shaffer, sons of Sam Born and Jack Shaffer Sr., acquired Rodda, the process was automated and the chicks' wings were eliminated, streamlining the production process and the chicks' contours.

Today, Sam Born's grandson, Ross, runs the 600-employee company with his cousin, David Shaffer. In 2002, they hired Samuel L. Torrence as president and chief operating officer, the company's first non-family top executive.

An Easter tradition

"The Born legacy is a legacy of invention," Torrence says, noting that Sam Born's inventions included chocolate sprinkles and a machine that inserted sticks into lollipops.

Not all innovation comes from the top, however. A few years ago, employee Melody Klotz suggested a way to keep marshmallow residue from clogging the company's new candy-packing machine. The solution: putting cheesecloth over the machine's vacuum tubes.

Thanks to Klotz, marshmallow goo no longer interrupts the candy-packing process, and now she operates the machine that picks up the Peeps and plops them inside shallow boxes bound for stores around the world.

Billy Graham preaches hope for the nation

Vision for merica

After the Rev. Billy Graham completed a successful crusade in England in 1954, he received word that Prime Minister Winston Churchill wanted to meet privately with him. Though exhausted after addressing 100,000 people packed into London's massive Wembley Stadium, the evangelist agreed to visit Britain's elder statesman the next day.

"We sat down and he said, 'I couldn't fill Wembley Stadium even if I brought Marilyn Monroe here. How do you do it?'" recalls Graham, 87. "I told him it was the work of the Holy Spirit."

The conversation quickly turned serious, as Churchill cited newspapers filled with news of murder and war, leaving him feeling hopeless. "I had a New Testament in my pocket, and I took it out and read several passages to him," Graham says. As Churchill listened, Graham said a prayer for the world leader, acknowledging that the Scriptural promise of Christ's Second Coming was the only hope for both the world and its people.

At 27, Billy Graham hit the road as a fiery Youth for Christ evangelist.

Although the world has changed drastically in the 52 years since meeting Churchill, Graham holds fast to the same great hope that he's shared with more than 210 million people in more than 185 countries and territories during hundreds of evangelical crusades and missions. "My hope is based on the Scriptures, and the Scripture hasn't changed," he says. "God loves you, Christ has died on the cross for you, and your sins will be forgiven; and you will know with certainty you are going to heaven. That is the hope that I share with millions of people who have accepted Jesus as Savior and Lord."

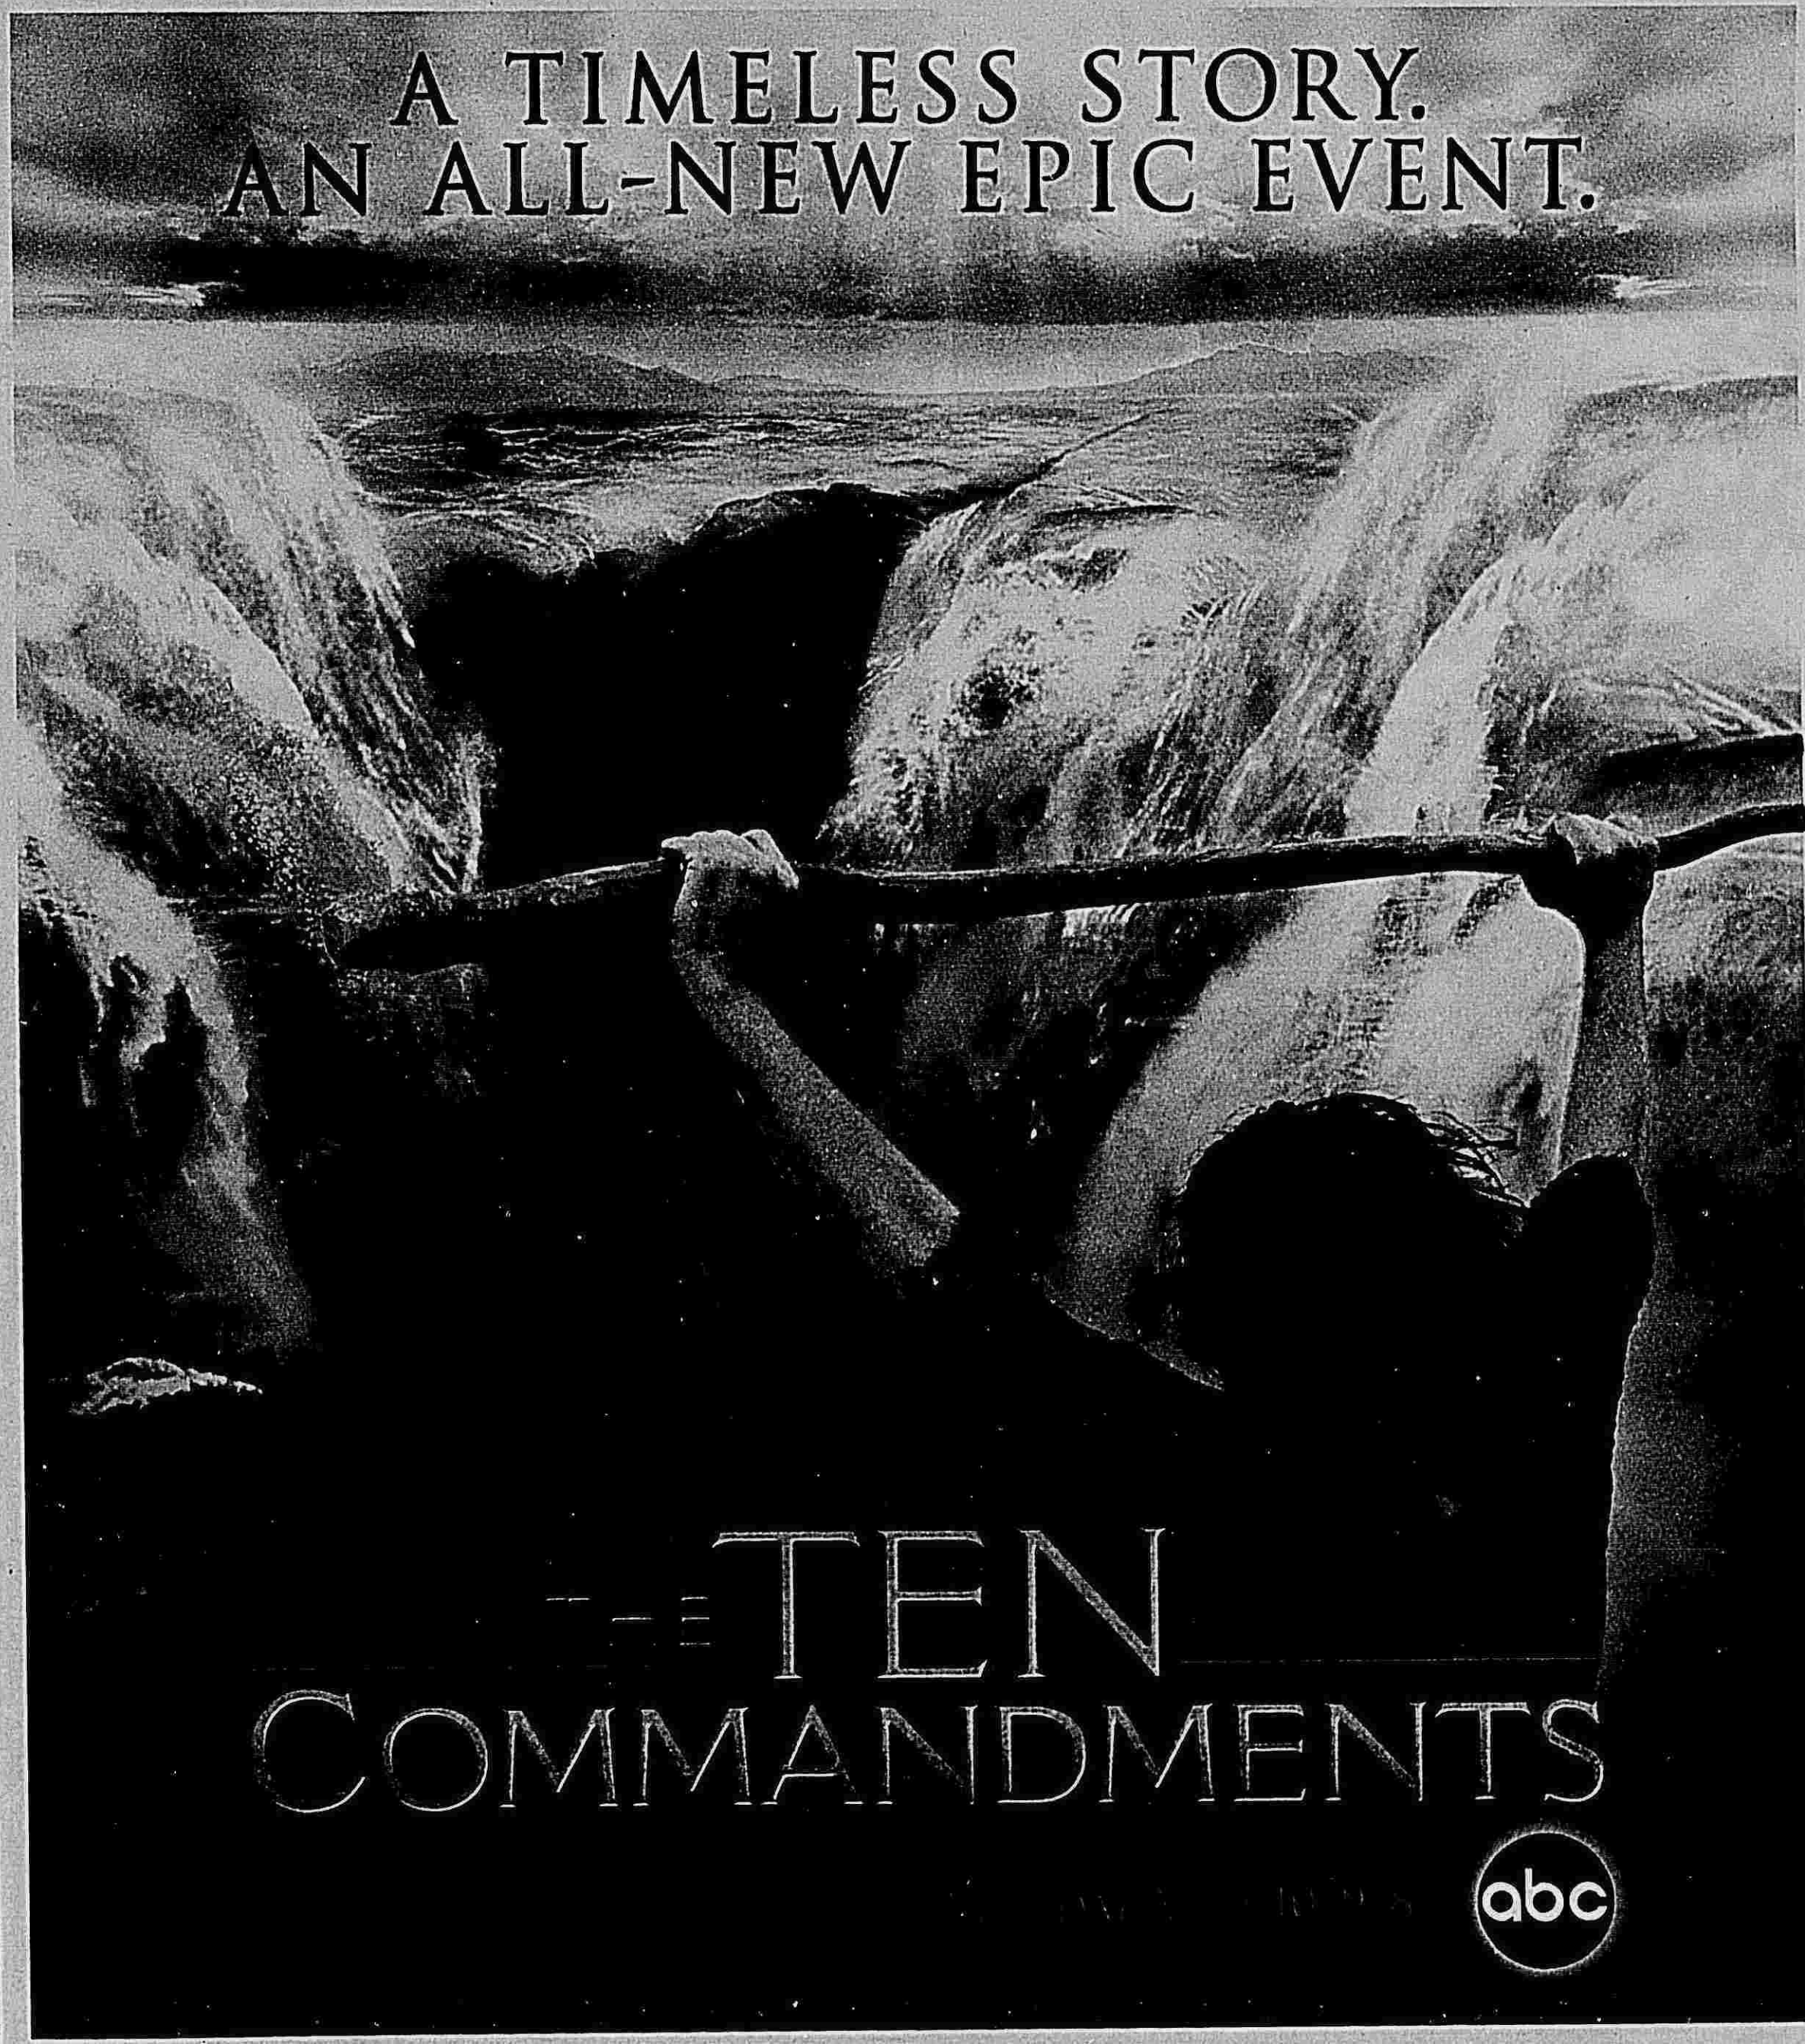

Final crusade

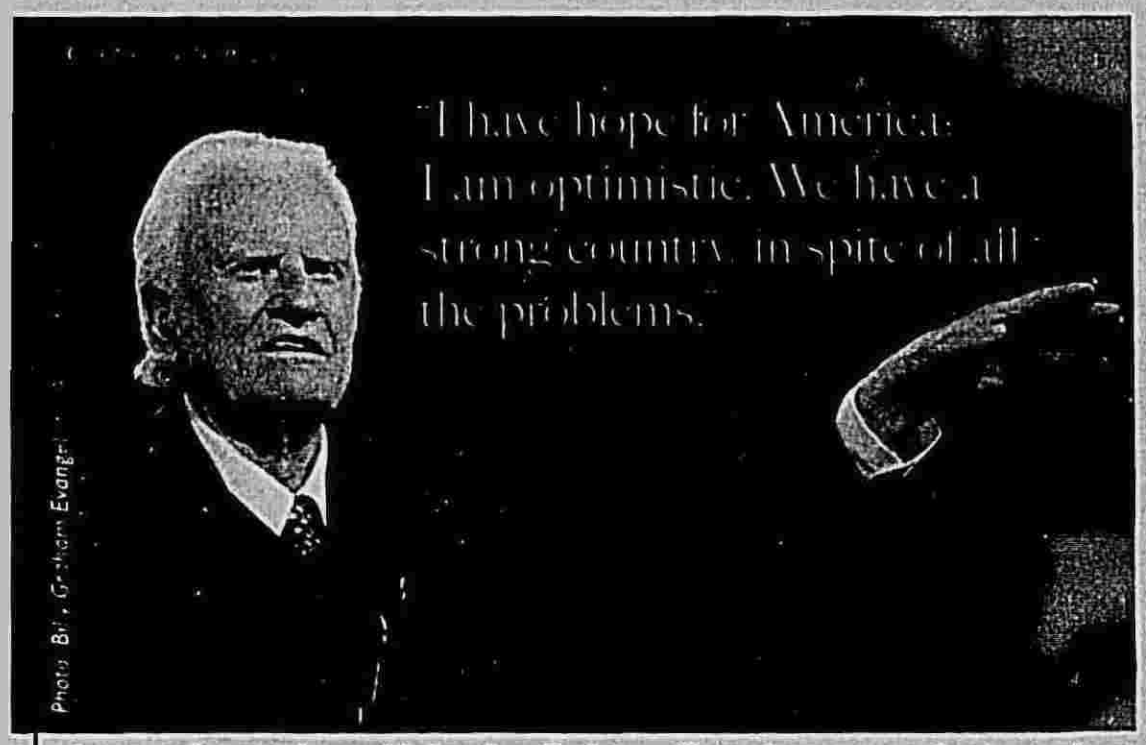

After six decades of traveling the world to spread the Gospel of Jesus Christ, Graham last year completed what he called his last crusade, attracting 230,000 people over three days in New York. Over the past few years, he's slowed considerably, settling into at-home life with his wife, Ruth, 85, in their log house on 200 acres in the Blue Ridge Mountains in Montreat, N.C. (pop. 630). Now, after being gone for months at a stretch each year for decades, he enjoys remaining mostly at home, preaching only on special occasions. Preaching is, after all, his calling—one that he will continue, in some shape or fashion, as long as he is physically able.

"I will preach as long as I have strength," he vows. "Nowhere in the Bible do I find any of God's servants retiring."

Graham has battled Parkinson's-like symptoms for a dozen years and deals with hearing and vision loss. He had surgeries six years ago at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., to treat his hydrocephalus and relieve the pressure from fluid on his brain. But he doesn't complain. Despite relying on a walker for mobility, he still creates an imposing presence with his 6-foot-3-inch frame and clear blue eyes that have retained their ever-youthful sparkle as he sits in his kitchen, near a stone fireplace decorated with country jugs and copper pans, facing a framed print that reads, "God loves you and I'm trying."

Last year's crusade was his last, but Graham will continue to preach on occasion.

Ruth, who can no longer walk because of hip and back deterioration, has taken advantage of the unseasonably warm day to leave the house on an outing with the assistance of aides. The couple, who married in 1943 and have five children, 19 grandchildren and numerous great-grandchildren, spend most of their time together, either praying, reading the Bible, watching television or just holding hands in silent gratitude for life's blessings, including each other.

"She has good days and bad days, and in a way, I have the same," he says. "I have a wonderful staff that takes care of us."

His impressive mane of hair has turned white; his deep, resonant voice has grown soft. But his message, and his passion for delivering it, is the same as when he left his hometown of Charlotte, N.C., to begin his career as a young preacher, embarking on a life's journey that would take him places he never expected to see.

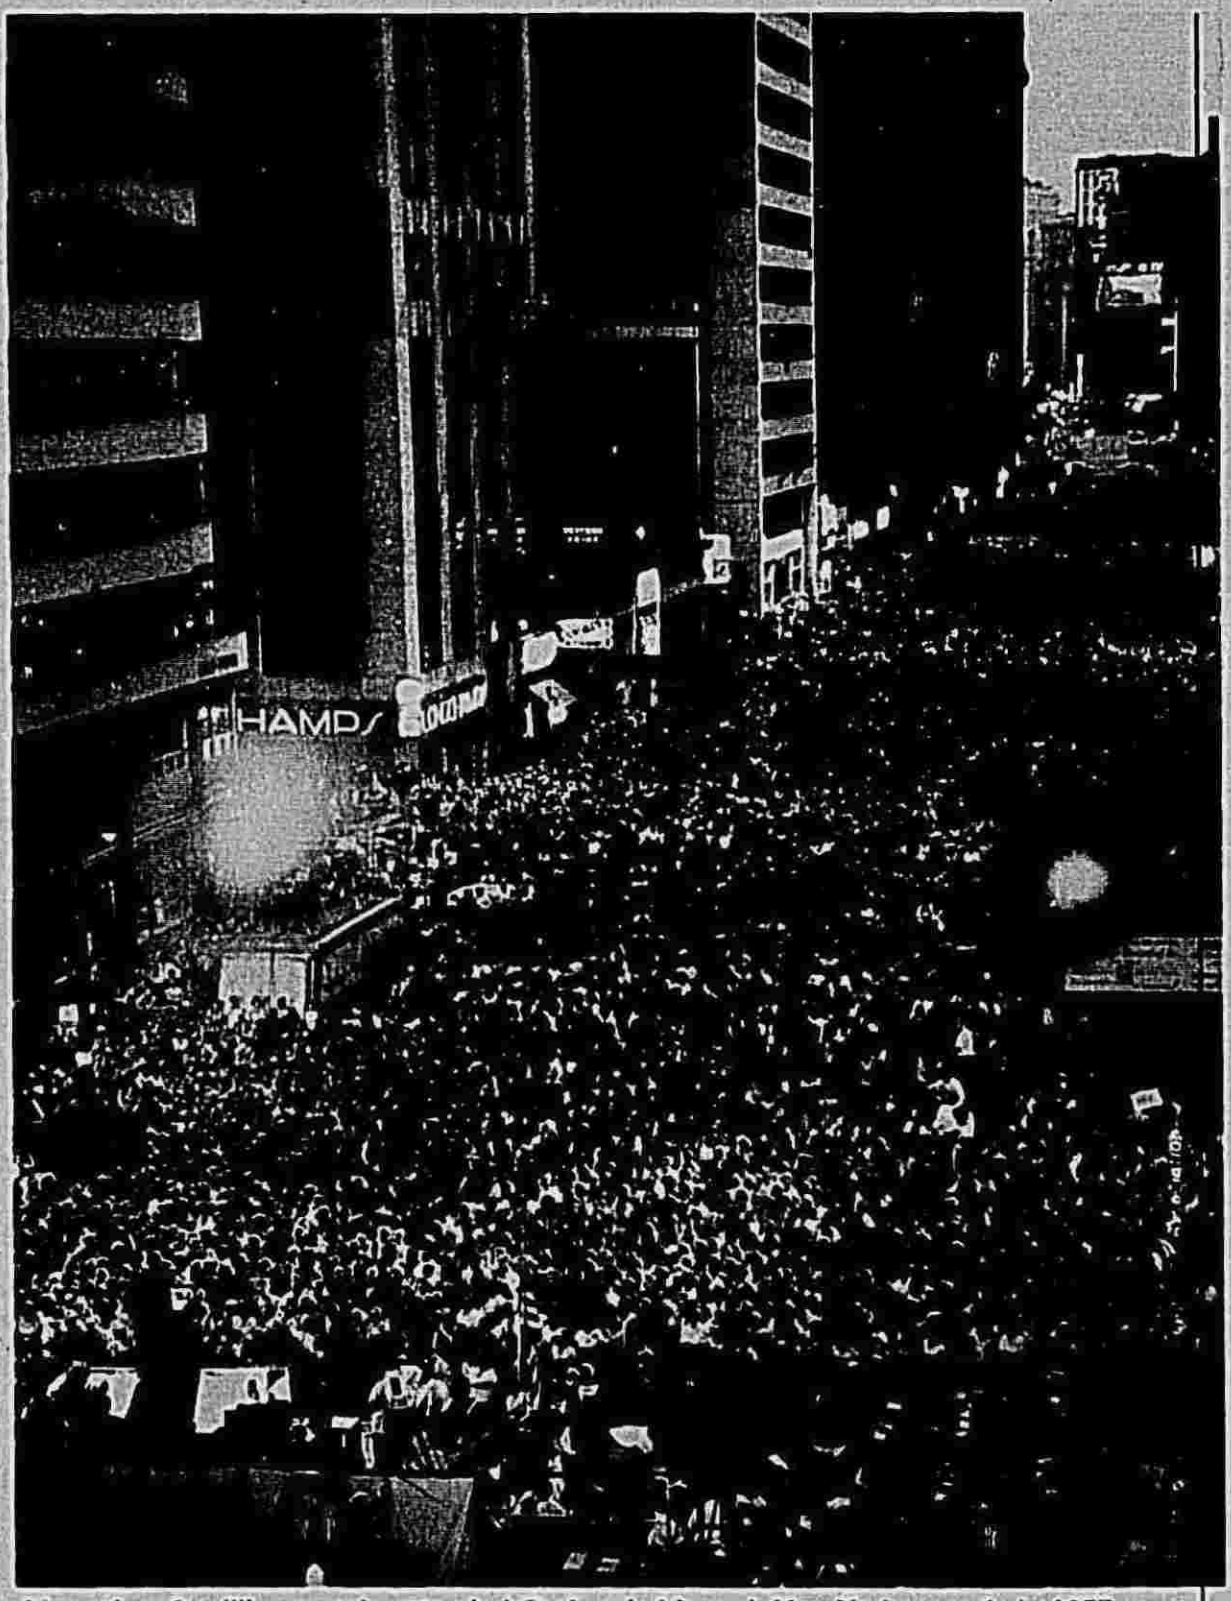

His spectacular sojourn is the centerpiece of a new Graham documentary, airing Easter week on PBS and Easter weekend on the Biography Channel, which reveals rare footage and a personal glimpse at the remarkable man who has served as a confidant to numerous U.S. presidents and a religious ambassador to leaders around the world. In addition, Graham recently released his 25th book, The Journey: How to Live by Faith in an Uncertain World, which took three years to complete. "The new book has the whole of what I believe and how to live the Christian life and what the hope is in my heart," he says.

"I have hope for America; I am optimistic," he says. "We have a strong country, in spite of all the problems. I think we are unfortunately bogged down in this war in Iraq, and I trust it can come to a peaceful solution. The Middle East is the tinderbox of the world, and always has been."

"There will always be division"

While many are concerned about growing division in America over the war and other political issues, Graham says the nation has overcome far greater rifts during its history. "Even during World War II and the Depression, there was a great division in the country," he says. "I can still remember it because I lived through it. People were divided politically and religiously."

He is confident the nation will reunite in time, but never completely. "We will never be totally united as some people think we will," he says. "There will always be a political division. There's great division all through our history."

More than 2 million people attended Graham's 16-week New York crusade in 1957.

Visiting with President and Nancy Reagan in the '80s

"We have left the foundation that I think America had in the beginning, which is largely based on the Scriptures."

Graham's vision for America is one of "peace and unity. Spiritual awakening would be number one," he says. "I think many people are praying that that will take place. And I think God will answer that prayer."

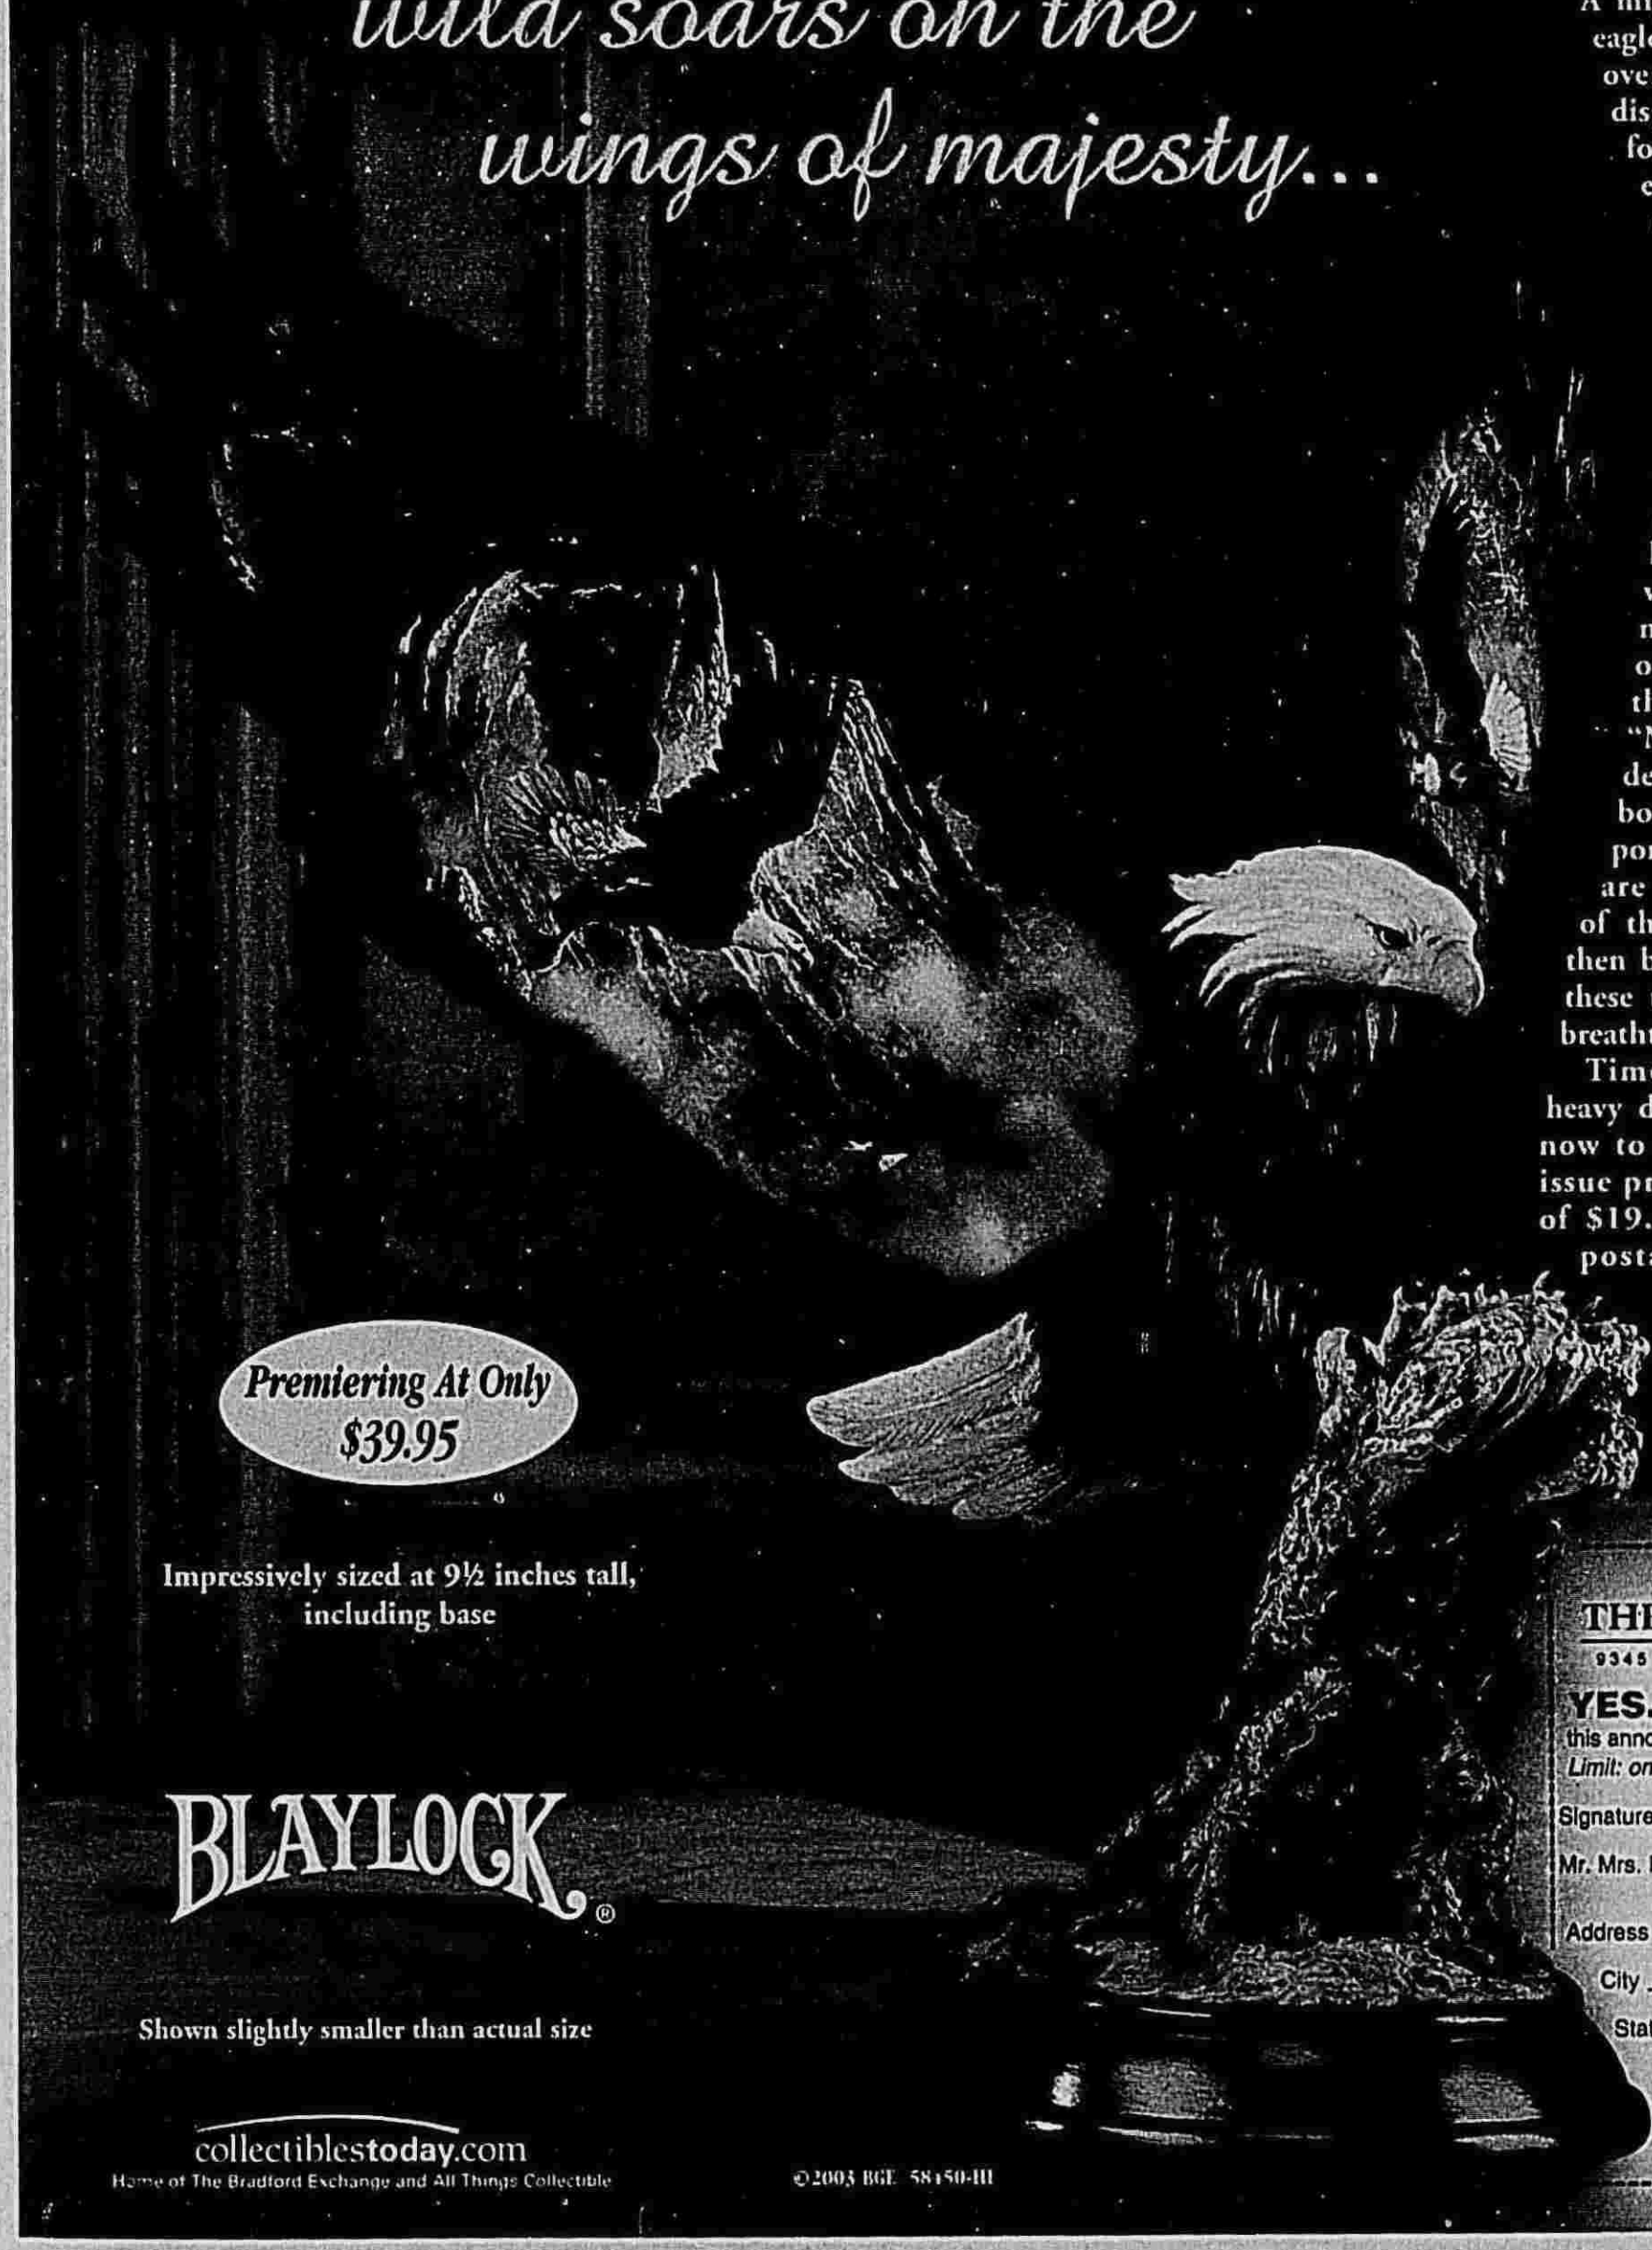

Still, Graham is bothered by "the fraud and the materialism and the shifting signs of our morality" that he sees today. "We have a great deal of depression today, discouragement, bewilderment, marital tensions," he says. "We have left the foundation that I think America had in the beginning, which is largely based on the Scriptures." Over the last two years, he has immersed himself in biographies of the founding fathers, including George Washington, Benjamin Franklin and John Quincy Adams. "I've been amazed at how often they referenced God in their writings or in their speeches. I think that we've gotten away from those foundations, and that is why we need a moral and spiritual revival."

Heaven bound

Despite retiring from much of public life, Graham's work continues through the Charlotte-based Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, which has about 500 employees, and over which his son, Franklin, serves as president and CEO. "Majestic Flight"

A mighty rush of wings signals a bald eagle's presence as he drifts gracefully over mountains in a breathtaking display of beauty and power. A six-foot span of fin and feather arches effortlessly to carry him high above the jagged summits, his distinctive silhouette like a fleeting shadow on the cloudless sky. The bald eagle echoes the essential life force within us...and his presence is a divine inspiration to the soul.

Now, a hand-painted collectible explores the splendor of the mighty eagle on the outstretched wings of a hand-cast sculpture, to create a work of art that takes you on a dramatic journey of discovery. Crafted of artist's resin to capture the thrilling descent of an eagle, "Majestic Flight" is a masterpiece of detailing and design. You'll be spellbound by the way in which vivid eagle portraits from artist Ted Blaylock are presented on the smooth underside of the eagle's outstretched wings, and then blended into the sculpture to unite these two distinctive art forms into one breathtaking work.

Time-intensive hand-crafting and heavy demand could limit supply. So act now to acquire it at the at the $39.95 issue price, payable in two installments of $19.97 each (plus a total of $6.99 postage and handling). Send no money now; fill out and mail the Reservation Application today.

CEO of Samaritan's Purse, a nondenominational evangelical Christian organization that helps victims of war, poverty and natural disasters around the world.

"I think he's doing a much better job than I ever did," Graham says. "He got his degree in business, but he preaches the Gospel and he's very bold with it."

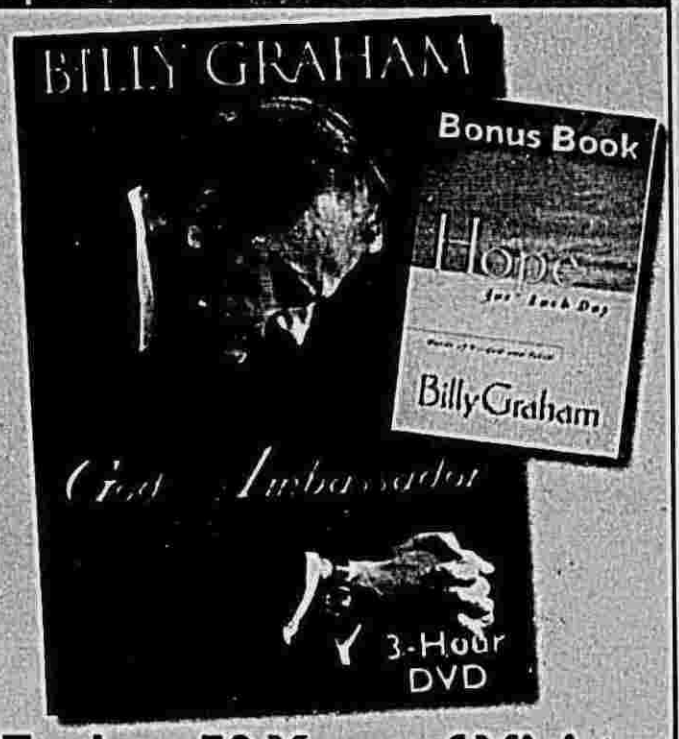

As he prepares to celebrate his 71st Easter as a Christian, Graham focuses not on his physical discomforts, but the glorious new journey that he believes awaits him on the other side of death. As he shared with Churchill on that day back in 1954, he remains convinced that God—and the promise of the Scriptures—provide the only hope, for both the world and for individuals.

"I have hope for myself because I know I'm going to heaven," he says. "I'm looking forward to going to heaven, very much so. I think about it every day; so does my wife. We hope we can join hands and go together."

Gardening

Promoting Pollination

by KATHY LaLIBERTE

Look closely in your garden and you'll notice butterflies, bees, flies and moths zipping from plant to plant in search of food in the form of nectar and pollen. Along the way these insects are playing a critical role as pollinators, helping your plants set fruit and reproduce. In fact, 91 percent of the estimated 240,000 flowering plant species worldwide require the help of pollinators to distribute their pollen.

Despite the important service they provide, some pollinators are threatened by habitat loss, pesticide use and disease. Here are four easy ways to encourage pollinators to visit your garden:

Provide an abundant source of food—Include lots of nectar- and pollen-rich plants in your garden, such as old-fashioned flowers and wildflowers. A succession of blooming annuals, perennials and shrubs will ensure nectar and pollen are available throughout the growing season. Remember to also include plants that butterfly larvae feed on, such as dill, fennel and milkweed.

Ease off the chemicals—Many pesticides—even organic ones—are toxic to bees and other beneficial organisms. In the short term, these pesticides may provide a quick knock-down to attacking insects. In the long run, you expose yourself, pets, wildlife and pollinators to toxic chemicals and risk disrupting the natural ecosystem. If you do apply a pesticide, never spray when blossoms are open or when bees or other pollinators are present.

Provide shelter—Butterflies, bees and other pollinators need shelter to hide from predators, get out of the elements and rear their young. Let a small part of your lawn grow wild for ground-nesting bees. Allow a pile of grass cuttings or a log to decompose in a sunny place. Or, leave a dead tree standing to create nooks for butterflies and solitary bees.

Provide water—A water garden, birdbath or catch basin for rain will guarantee that pollinators can always find the water they need to survive. Butterflies also are attracted to muddy puddles for salts and nutrients as well as water.

RECIPE: Creamy Jasmine Rice Pudding

Creamy Jasmine Rice Pudding

2/3 cup jasmine rice
4 cups milk
1/3 cup sugar or honey
1/2 teaspoon salt
5 cardamom pods
1 3-inch stick cinnamon
2 egg yolks
1/3 cup heavy cream
1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract
1/3 cup raisins, optional

American Profile

Jillian Martin
Norwalk, Ohio

In a 4-quart saucepan, combine rice, milk, sugar, salt, cardamom pods and cinnamon stick. Stir over medium heat until mixture begins to boil. Reduce heat and simmer for 35 to 40 minutes, stirring occasionally to prevent rice from sticking or burning. Mixture will become thick and creamy. When milk is mostly absorbed into the rice, remove from heat. In a small bowl, whisk together egg yolks, cream and vanilla. Stir this into the hot rice. Add raisins if desired. Cook an additional 2 to 3 minutes, until egg yolks are cooked through. Serve warm or cold. Serves 6 to 8.

Tips From Our Test Kitchen:
Sprinkle toasted almonds or dried cherries on top instead of raisins. Look for jasmine rice and cardamom pods at a health food store.

Did You Know...

ILLINOIS—Famous for its elegant atmosphere, lavish Christmas displays and Frango mints, Marshall Field's department store has been a beloved landmark on State Street in Chicago since 1892. This fall, the store's name will be changed to Macy's as a result of last year's acquisition by Macy's Cincinnati-based parent company.

INDIANA—In the late 1800s, J.S. McQuinn founded Hoosier Manufacturing Co. in Albany (pop. 2,368) to build the freestanding kitchen cabinet he invented to include storage and work space. The innovative cabinet style still is called a "Hoosier."

IOWA—The nation's largest collection of national bank notes on permanent display is housed in the Higgins Museum in Okoboji (pop. 820). Notes representing 278 Iowa towns showcase the history of national banking from 1863 to 1935.

KANSAS—Created by a federal charter in 1960, the National Agricultural Center and Hall of Fame in Bonner Springs (pop. 6,768) is the nation's tribute to the American farmer. A vast collection of historic farm machinery is displayed on the center's 172 acres.

MICHIGAN—Fanciful legends surround the Paulding Light, a mysterious "ghost light" that can be seen most evenings rising from a forest near Watersmeet (pop. 1,472) and hovering for several minutes. Swamp gas is one possible explanation.

MINNESOTA—Last September, Minnesota became the nation's first state to require all diesel fuel sold in the state be at least 2 percent biodiesel, a renewable fuel made from soybean oil and other vegetable oils and fats.

MISSOURI—In 1983, Lebanon (pop. 12,155) hooked the official title of "Aluminum Fishing Boat Capital of the World" for its many boat manufacturers, including Tracker Marine Corp., Lowe Boats, G3 Boats and Landau Manufacturing Co.

NEBRASKA—Desperate for the latest farm news, members of 43 farm organizations created the Nebraska Rural Radio Association in 1948 and began KRVN 880-AM radio in 1951 in Lexington (pop. 10,011), the nation's only rancher- and farmer-owned radio station.

NORTH DAKOTA—During hard economic times in 1893, millers at the Diamond Mill in Grand Forks (pop. 49,321) created a porridge using farina and called it Cream of Wheat because of its white color. Americans lapped it up.

OHIO—Humorist Erma Bombeck's grave at Woodland Cemetery in Dayton is marked with a 29,000-pound rock hauled from near her Arizona home to commemorate her years there. The Dayton native, whose column appeared in more than 800 newspapers, died in 1996.

SOUTH DAKOTA—The T-28, an armored research plane able to penetrate hailstorms, is operated by the Institute of Atmospheric Sciences at the South Dakota School of Mines and Technology in Rapid City (pop. 59,607).

WISCONSIN—Legendary U.S. Sen. William Proxmire, who served in Congress from 1957 to 1989, created the Golden Fleece Award to spotlight government waste. He served more than 20 years without missing a roll-call vote, a Senate record. Proxmire died last December.

—Helen Woronik, Salem, Connecticut

- 4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 cup sugar
- 6 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup cold butter
- 2 eggs, lightly beaten
- 1-1/3 cups milk
- 2 teaspoons grated orange peel
- 2 teaspoons almond extract

Fill paper-lined or greased muffin cups two-thirds full.

In a bowl, combine the sugar, flour and cinnamon. Cut in butter until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Sprinkle about 1 teaspoonful over each muffin. Bake at 375° for 20-25 minutes or until a toothpick comes out clean. Cool for 5 minutes before removing from pans to wire racks. Yield: 2 dozen.

Italian Easter Bread

—June Formanek, Belle Plaine, Iowa

- 2-3/4 to 3-1/4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 package (1/4 ounce) active dry yeast
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2/3 cup milk
- 3 tablespoons butter, *divided
- 2 eggs
- 1/2 cup chopped mixed candied fruit
- 1/4 cup chopped blanched almonds
- 1/2 teaspoon aniseed
- 5 uncooked eggs, dyed

GLAZE:

- 1 cup confectioners' sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 to 2 tablespoons milk

Decorator candies, optional

In a large mixing bowl, combine 1 cup flour, sugar, yeast and salt. In a saucepan, heat milk and 2 tablespoons butter to 120°-130°. Add to dry ingredients; beat on medium speed for 2 minutes. Add eggs; mix well. Stir in enough remaining flour to form a soft dough. Turn onto a lightly floured surface; knead until smooth and elastic, about 6-8 minutes. Place in a greased bowl, turning once to grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; turn onto a lightly floured surface. Knead in fruit, almonds and aniseed until blended. Let rest for 10 minutes. Divide dough in half. Shape each portion into a 24-in. rope. Loosely twist ropes together; place on a greased baking sheet and form into a ring. Pinch ends together. Melt remaining butter; brush over dough. Gently separate ropes and tuck dyed eggs into openings. Cover and let rise until doubled, about 40 minutes.

Bake at 350° for 30-35 minutes or until golden brown. Cool on a wire rack. For glaze, in a bowl, combine the confectioners' sugar, vanilla and enough milk to achieve desired consistency; drizzle over bread. Sprinkle with candies if desired. Yield: 1 loaf.

Strawberry Braid

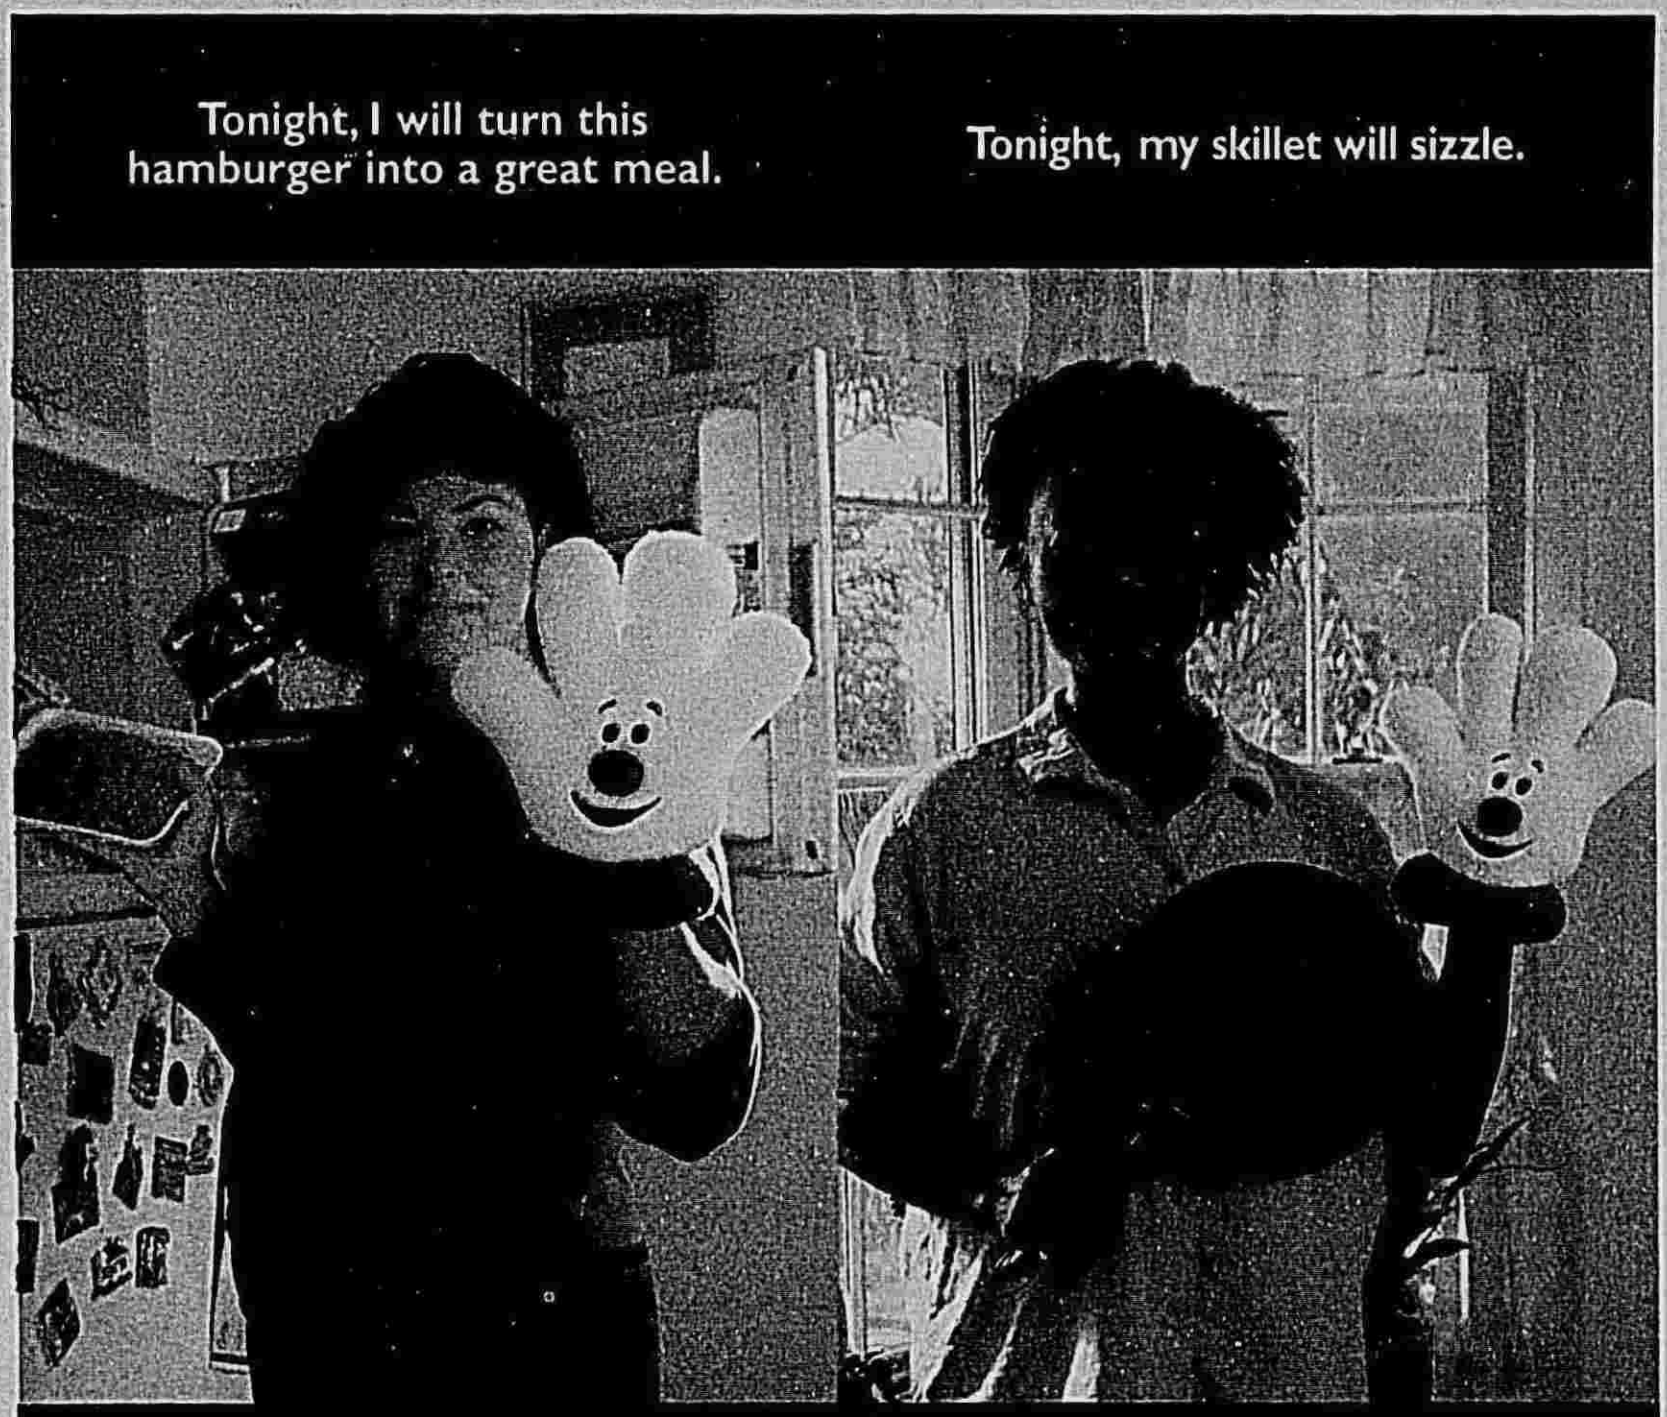

—Elizabeth Area, Stillwater, Oklahoma

- 1 package (16 ounces) hot roll mix
- 1 cup strawberry jam
- 1/2 cup finely chopped dried apricots
- 1/4 cup chopped walnuts
- 1 tablespoon butter, melted
- 2 teaspoons sugar

Prepare hot roll mix according to package directions. While dough is resting, combine the jam, apricots and walnuts in a bowl. Turn dough onto a lightly floured surface; roll into a 14-in. x 9-in. rectangle. Place on a greased foil-lined baking sheet.

Spread filling down center third of rectangle. On each long side, cut 1-in.-wide strips about 2-1/2 in. into center. Starting at one end, fold alternating strips at an angle across filling. Pinch ends to seal. Cover and let rise until doubled, about 30 minutes. Brush braid with butter and sprinkle with sugar. Bake at 350° for 25-30 minutes or until golden brown. Cool on a wire rack. Yield: 10-12 servings.

Knitting supplies lie on a table at Panera Bread during a meeting of Stitch 'n Bitch.

Ladies gather to knit and...talk

This is not your granny's knitting group

By HELEN MANSFIELD
hmansfield@nwnewsgroup.com

ROUND LAKE – Julia Roberts did it before she gave birth to her twins.

Your mother probably knows how to do it, but she doesn't really have time for it anymore.

Chances are your grandmother used to do it on a regular basis.

The age-old craft of knitting has become a popular hobby again for women of all ages.

Shawn Nelson, of Fox Lake, and Ann Jacobs, of Antioch, are sales consultants for Remington Homes. Not long after the two met, they learned that they both had a great love of knitting.

Jacobs read "Stitch 'n Bitch Nation," a book by Debbie Stroller, which recommended knitting women gather on a monthly basis at a coffee shop like Panera Bread to, well, stitch and bitch.

The Round Lake Beach group meets the first and third Monday of the month at 6:30 p.m. at the Panera Bread in Round Lake Beach.

Their first meeting was in January and they have had ladies ranging in age from their 20s to their 50s and from all levels of experience. They come from Mundelein, Antioch, Fox Lake and Round Lake.

Lauri Divis, of Antioch, said she was recruited when she was shopping at Hannah's Home Accents in Antioch. She overhead ladies talking about the group and started coming.

The Stitch 'n Bitch Club usually close down Panera Bread on Monday nights and are gently kicked to the curb between 9:15 and 10 p.m.

Chris Padgett - cpadgett@nwnewsgroup.com
Lauri Divis of Antioch works on her knitting project during Stitch 'n Bitch, a knitting group that meets regularly in Round Lake Beach at Panera Bread.

The group has had as few as four women and as many as 10. Together they share patterns and debate what the "fastest" needles are. Like surgeons with their instruments, the women have needles made of redwood, bamboo and aluminum. There are even some made of ebony, and a pair of blown glass needles can go for $40 to 50.

No topic of conversation is forbidden, which means sometimes the conversation can get a little "blue" and boisterous.

Jacobs said a woman in her 50s showed up once with an afghan that she was working on. All of the sudden, the woman pulled a pattern out of her yarn bag for a knitted man's thong that she downloaded off the Internet.

"The sizes were medium, large and wow," Jacobs said with a laugh.

Camille (Rick Boynton, right) trembles in fear of jealous Homenides (Anthony Crivello) in a scene from Chicago Shakespeare Theater's production of "A Flea in Her Ear."

Silly 'A Flea in Her Ear' offers laughs but ultimately disappoints

By TOM WITOM

A Flea in Her Ear

Chicago Shakespeare Theater,
800 E. Grand Ave., Chicago
Through April 23
Tickets: $48 - $65
(312) 596-5600

Chicago Shakespeare Theater has gathered a sterling cast for a new version of Georges Feydeau's lively 1907 sex farce, "A Flea in her Ear," directed by Gary Griffin.

The adaptation, by David Ives (his most recent play, "Polish Joke," was presented by Noble Fool Theatricals in 2005), captures the loony comedy's fever pitch. Stock characters, from a suspicious wife to a jealous husband to a household full of amorous-minded servants, give the multiple doors – a key feature of the set – a workout.

The first and third acts of the two and one-half-hour show take place in the upscale home of straight-laced insurance executive Victor Chandebise (deftly played by Rick Hall, who also handles the role of a much-abused bellman, who happens to be his lookalike).

His wife Raymonde (Linda Hart), doubting Victor's fidelity, hatches a half-baked scheme to put her suspicions to the test. Unfortunately, she gets help from her all-too-willing best friend Lucienne (Ora Jones), who helps dream up an anonymous love letter setting up an assignation at what in today's parlance would be called a "hot pillow" hotel.

Meanwhile, Lucienne's husband, Don Carlos (Anthony Crivello in a no-holds-barred performance as an excitable Spaniard), recognizes the handwriting in the love letter that Victor has shown him and vows to spring a trap on Lucienne and her paramour (whoever that person may be).

The presence of Victor's hapless nephew Camille (Rick Boynton, who steals the show) complicates the plot. Camille, afflicted by a speech impediment, is often misunderstood, making him a perfect – if politically incorrect – comic fall guy. Things heat up in Act II at the Frisky Puss Hotel, which is run with mock military precision by Ferraillon (Bradley Mott, in colorful regalia) and his wife Olympia (Kathy Scambiatterra, who also is flamboyantly attired).

No one is more surprised than Raymonde when her rendezvous at the hotel goes awry. Not only does she encounter family friend Tournel (Timothy Edward Kane), who wants to take full advantage of the situation and bed Raymonde, but she also runs into others who have some serious explaining to do.

Others doing their best to maintain the frenzy include Rian Jairell as a Brit on the prowl for a partner; William Dick and Michele Graff, two servants; Kevin Gudahl, the family doctor; Mattie Hawkinson, a saucy maid; and Dale Benson, an amusing boozehound hired by the hotel to throw jealous spouses off the track.

Give Daniel Ostling credit for coming up with an incredible set, from stately multiple-door residence in the first act to the totally tacky (think blinking neon sign, vivid pink boudoir) hotel set in the second act.

Depending on one's affinity for slapstick, puns, over-the-top clowning and outrageous costuming, this "Flea" may either provide a veritable feast or leave one with an empty, unsatisfied feeling.

For our part, while we could appreciate the effort expended by the production's outstanding cast, the overall theatrical experience was more gratuitous than grand.

Past cannot be changed

Howard Spence (Sam Shepard) is a well-worn actor in western films. Howard lives in the present and for the moment. He's killing himself trying to forget his past. While on a film shoot on location in Utah, after a night (probably too many to count) of drinking, drugs and loose women, Howard decides to take off for Elko, Nev. to see his mother (Eva Marie Saint). He left Elko and his parents behind more than 30 years ago. He didn't go to his father's funeral some years ago, and he hasn't seen his mother since.

Howard is a person who is hard to like. His mother is a woman who has had few surprises in her well-ordered life, and Howard is a man who has lived life on the edge with little sobriety. So he's in for a surprise when Mom tells him that he has a child. Howard's long ago affair with Doreen (Jessica Lange) is a pleasant but distant memory. She was an actress with a small part in big picture he made years ago. But her role just got a lot bigger when Howard sets out to find her and the kid he never knew.

Hot on Howard's trail is a guy named Sutter (Tim Roth), whose company has bonded the film for completion and stands to lose $32.5 million if Howard does not return to the set soon. The director is shooting around Howard as much as he can, but while the clock ticks, money pours through the hourglass like sands of the Western's desert location.

In search of his new-found offspring, Howard meanders from his mom's in Nevada to former lover Doreen's in Montana, where he discovers that not much has changed in her life and she can match him in weary recollections. Howard meets his son, Earl (Gabriel Mann), a morose, hollow-eyed saloon singer, with a strung out girlfriend played with surprising humor by Fairuza Balk. Neither Doreen nor Earl is thrilled to see Howard. Warning, minor spoiler alert ahead. Also dogging Howard's trail is a mysterious young woman with an urn containing her deceased mother's ashes. Turns out that her name is Sky (Sarah Polley), Howard's daughter from another fling, and she's in search of him.

This dusty town in Montana serves as a crossroads where life catches up with them all. And Sutter catches up with Howard to haul him back to Utah they can wrap the movie. Even forgiveness can't erase decades of thundering silence and irresponsibility. They all work it out, but as one would expect, with so much damage over so many years, your normal Hollywood ending is not what you'll find here.

Wim Wenders and Sam Shepard collaborated as director and writer 22 years ago on the award-winning film "Paris, Texas." This story is a good one, with terrific performances nearly all around. It's always a pleasure to watch the luminous Jessica Lange.

Several of the scenes are designed with the look of movie sets.

Long shots of the streets of a sleepy western town, and boxed interiors with spare lighting and plank floors.

These seem to complement the rough-hewn figure and style of Sam Shepard.

Moving on

This is a rare, sensitive movie about middle-aged men at crossroads in their lives.

As a youngster in the 1960s, John Goodman was a roughneck boy who accidentally gave a young girl a real shiner of a black eye in a contact sport. He learns to like her when they meet again at a dancing and charm school. They promise to meet at the dance school on "the fifth day of the fifth month of the fifth year, after the millennium."

On the way to that appointment, Goodman is injured in a car crash, and Robert Carlyle ("The Full Monty") makes the 911 call and is told by paramedics to keep Goodman talking until help arrives.

Carlyle, a dejected widower, is asked to ride with Goodman in the ambulance. Goodman shares his story and asks Carlyle to make the trip in his place. This leads to a path that allows Carlyle to effectively deal with the recent death of his wife.

This very charming movie has an outstanding cast with actors Adam Arkan, Ernie Hudson, Marisa Tomei, Danny DeVito, Sean Astin, and Mary Steenburgen.

Brick, modern-day black-and-white film noir

Look at this story as a modern-day, black-and-white film noir. In this case, we have teenagers in high school involved in murder and a sophisticated drug trade with villains you don't expect in the suburbs.

A high school kid gets dumped by his girlfriend, and later he finds her dead at the mouth of a sewer drainpipe. He wants to solve the murder. This leads to upside down romances, a drug trade that's making major money and school officials who seem to always be at least one step behind the kids.

Much of the style of the dialogue and action is classic film noir, though the vernacular is strictly contemporary drug culture, influenced by text message shorthand. When it's all said and done, we have our femme fatale making her statement along with a view of teen life today that, while hopefully an exaggeration, is closer to reality than we'd like to believe.

New Releases

These films are currently playing at local theaters. An average of six new reviews a week as well as recent releases can be found under Now Playing at www.reelmoviecritic.com.

Friends With Money: Jennifer Aniston, Frances McDormand, Joan Cusack and Catherine Keener (a powerhouse cast) star as four life-long friends, who are approaching "a certain age." Their comfortable lives of designer clothes, charity events, and caring for the men (and offspring) in their lives have become off balance. This comedy drama is about contemporary adults in search of love, friendship, and filthy spoils but who find everything in a state of constant flux. (R)

Lucky Number Slevin: A comic thriller that twists and turns its way through an underworld of crime and revenge where nothing is as it seems. Set in New York City, a case of mistaken identity lands Slevin (Josh Hartnett) in the middle of a war being plotted by two of the city's biggest crime bosses; The Rabbi (Ben Kingsley) and The Boss (Morgan Freeman).

Slevin is under constant surveillance by relentless Detective Brikowski (Stanley Tucci) as well as the infamous assassin Goodkat (Bruce Willis) and he has to hatch his own ingenious plot to escape the maze alive. Also stars Lucy Liu. (R)

New to DVD

Memoirs of a Geisha: Rob Marshall, the director of "Chicago," transforms Arthur Golden's 1997 novel (it spent two years on the NY Times best-seller list) seamlessly to the screen.

The story of how Chiyo (young Suzuka Ohgo), a fisherman's daughter sold by her family who could not support her, transcends her conditions to become Sayuri (Ziyi Zhang, "House of Flying Daggers"), the most sought after geisha in Japan, is told with breathtaking splendor. Her journey was not without cost, however.

This beautifully photographed film gives audiences a rare glimpse into the little understood world of the geisha. There is an obvious admiration by the storytellers for the beauty, skill and art of the geisha. It also helps us appreciate the adept handling of business strategies employed by the women who train and manage the careers of these strong, intelligent women known as geisha.

The casting is glorious though controversial, with most of the principals being Chinese in this Japanese story. Ken Watanabe is the only Japanese actor in a major role.

Sayuri realizes that her life has not been as most might like and she cautions us at the end of the film with these words, "These are not the memories of an empress or a queen. These are memories of a different kind." (PG-13)

King Kong: An exciting but uneven adventure film that manages to dazzle the senses. The fight scenes and special effects are extraordinary, but the ho-hum story and characterizations are nothing special. "King Kong" suffers from what I call "Titanic" syndrome. It's one of those films with a completely routine opening and a brilliant last half.

Two terrific actors are the featured leads: Adrien Brody (of "The Pianist") and Naomi Watts (of "Mulholland Drive" and "21 Grams"). But both of them are wasted in one-dimensional parts that could've been played by anyone.

The new "King Kong" does not equal the original, but it is a vast improvement over the tacky 1970s version. It's a tasty piece of cinematic cotton candy, but people hungering for a more substantial meal should look elsewhere.

Review provided to Reel Movie Critic by Vittorio J. Carli. (PG-13)

Special Note: We liked the film more than Vito did. It was on both our top 10 lists for 2005. We would give it 3.5.

Cooking by the Book

Italian recipes inspire dessert, welcome the arrival of spring

By TOM WITOM

This week's "Cooking by the Book" reaches back into the shelves for some Italian favorites. Yet it makes no difference that the books from which they come aren't newly minted; the basic recipes they contain are timeless.

Food writer Anne Bianchi's elegant dessert treat, Cannoli Alla Siciliana, takes some doing but is worth the effort. Consider it as a special finale to an Easter dinner or for some other special-occasion get-together. It's from "Italian Festival Food" (Macmillan).

Ricotta also figures into the second recipe, spring-oriented Ritagoni with Asparagus and Ricotta from another fine cookbook, "Cooking the Roman Way" (Harper Collins) by David Downie.

Cannoli Alla Siciliana

(Makes 12 to 15 cannolis)
Time: About 2 hours
Equipment: 12 to 15 cannoli rings; large pastry bag fitted with a standard tip

Cannoli shells:

One and one-half cups un bleached all-purpose flour
One and one-half Tbl. unsalted butter, melted
Pinch of salt
1 Tbl. sugar
1 tsp. white wine vinegar
1 tsp. unsweetened cocoa powder
1 tsp. ground espresso
About one-half cup Marsala or white wine
Butter for greasing
1 large egg white, lightly beaten
Olive oil for frying

Filling:

One and one-half cups fresh ricotta
1 Tbl. pure vanilla extract
One-half cup sugar
One-third cup diced candied fruit
One-quarter cup grated bitter sweet chocolate
One-eighth tsp. ground cinnamon
4 Tbl. confectioner's sugar

1. To make the shells, heap the flour on a work surface and make a well in the center. Add the butter, pinch of salt, sugar, vinegar, cocoa and coffee. Mix with a fork, incorporating the flour a little at a time and adding Marsala as needed to form a dense dough; some flour may remain. Knead about 15 minutes, or until the dough becomes smooth and elastic. Wrap in plastic wrap and refrigerate for 30 minutes.

2. Roll the dough into an one-eighth-inch thick rectangle. Using a 4-inch-round cookie cutter, cut the dough into circles. When all the dough is cut, gather any remaining dough into a ball, and repeat the procedure. Continue until all the dough has been used.

3. Gently pull each circle into an oval. Grease the cannoli rings with butter and wrap each circle around a ring, basting the ends with egg white and pressing to seal.

4. Heat 2 inches of oil to 375 degrees F in a large skillet over medium heat and fry the dough-wrapped rings, a few at a time, turning frequently until all surfaces are golden brown. Remove with a slotted spoon, drain on paper towels, cool to room temperature, and gently slide off the metal tubes.

5. To make the filling, pass the ricotta through the finest disk of a food mill, add the remaining ingredients, and mix well. Refrigerate for 30 minutes.

6. Spoon the filling into a pastry bag and pipe into each of the cannoli. Arrange on a platter, dust with confectioner's sugar and serve.

Make ahead: The cannoli dough can be made up to two days in davance, wrapped tightly in plastic wrap and refrigerated until ready to use. It can also be frozen for up to three weeks, but, in either case, it should be returned to room temperature before using. The fried cannoli shells can be stored in an airtight container for up to a week.

Rigatoni with Asparagus and Ricotta

(Serves 6)
One and one-half lbs. tender young green asparagus
Kosher salt or coarse sea salt
1 lb. rigatoni or penne
One and one-half cup ricotta (about three-quarters of a pound)
2 Tbl. extra-virgin olive oil
3 heaping Tbl. freshly grated Pecorino Romano
Freshly ground black pepper
About 1 cup freshly grated cheese, half Pecorino Romano and half Parmigiano-Reggiano

Add a generous pinch of salt to the boiling water, drop in the pasta and stir. Wait 1 minute and add the chopped asparagus stems. Cover the pot. When the water returns to a boil, cook the pasta and stems, uncovered, for 3 minutes. Add the asparagus tips, stir and cook until the pasta is al dente, 5 to 8 minutes.

While the pasta cooks, scoop the ricotta into a large serving bowl. Ladle in about 2 tablespoons of the pasta water and stir with a wooden spoon or spatula. Add the oil, the 3 heaping tablespoons of Pecorino Romano and a generous pinch of pepper. Stir until smooth and dense.

When the pasta and asparagus are al dente, drain and toss them into the serving bowl with the ricotta, stirring and flipping.

Serve hot with a bowl of mixed cheeses on the side.

Stuffed Fish Fillets

8 small pieces fish fillet (salmon, trout, cod, perch, red snapper), about 11/2 pounds
2 cups seasoned croutons
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Jarlsberg or Jarlsberg Lite cheese
2 minced green onions (or scallions)
1 small carrot, grated
1/4 cup each minced green and red peppers
11/2 cups chicken or vegetable broth
2 Tbsp lemon juice
3 Tbsp tomato paste
1 Tbsp chopped fresh oregano (or equivalent dried)
2 Tbsp extra virgin olive oil
1 clove minced garlic
3 small zucchini, grated
12 thin strips Jarlsberg or Jarlsberg Lite

Preheat oven to 350° F.

Place 4 fillets in oiled baking dish. Crush croutons with rolling pin or in food processor, then mix with shredded cheese, onion, carrot and peppers. In separate bowl, whisk together broth, lemon juice, tomato paste and oregano, adding 1/2 cup liquid to crumb mixture. Spoon stuffing evenly over fillets and top with remaining four fillets.

Bake 25 to 30 minutes, basting fish with remaining liquid. While baking, heat olive oil in heavy skillet and saute garlic with zucchini, about 5 minutes. Transfer to large serving platter. A few minutes before fish is done, arrange three strips of cheese on top of each portion and bake until cheese begins to melt. Place filets over zucchini. Serves 4.

For grilling, cut zucchini in thick horizontal slices.

To grill: Place stuffed fillets in oiled baking pan (not glass) and sprinkle with minced garlic. Place pan on grill over indirect heat, cover and cook 20 minutes. Baste fish with remaining liquid, cover and cook 10 minutes or more until fish is opaque. A few minutes before fish is done, arrange strips of cheese on top and cook until cheese begins to melt. Grill zucchini until done.

Cats (cause) dilemma for daughter

Dear Sandy:

My mother has two adorable cats, 8 and 10 years old. Unfortunately, my mother is very sick and will not be with us much longer. I would take her cats in a minute, but as it is I have two of my own and I'm allergic to cats.

I took shots for years so I could keep the two I've got — two more would probably put me in the hospital. Everyone else in our family who might take them has one very allergic person, and/or a dog.

I do not want to separate these cats. I must find someone who will care for them well and keep them together. Do you have any ideas that might help us?

My other dilemma is: In lieu of flowers, we would like to set up a memorial fund at one of the local animal shelters where people can send donations in my mother's name. I'd like your recommendations on the shelters in this area.

If you can give me any advice with either of these two problems, I would truly appreciate it.

Sincerely,
Cynthia J.

Dear Cynthia:

I am so sorry to hear about your mother. I think you are smart to be exploring options for her cats now rather than later. There are simply not enough homes for the number of cats there are.

With that said it is still possible with lots of hard work. You can check all the local shelters to see if anyone would take the cats. Go to www.petfinder.com for a list of shelters and rescue groups.

Here is your best bet to find homes for the cats.

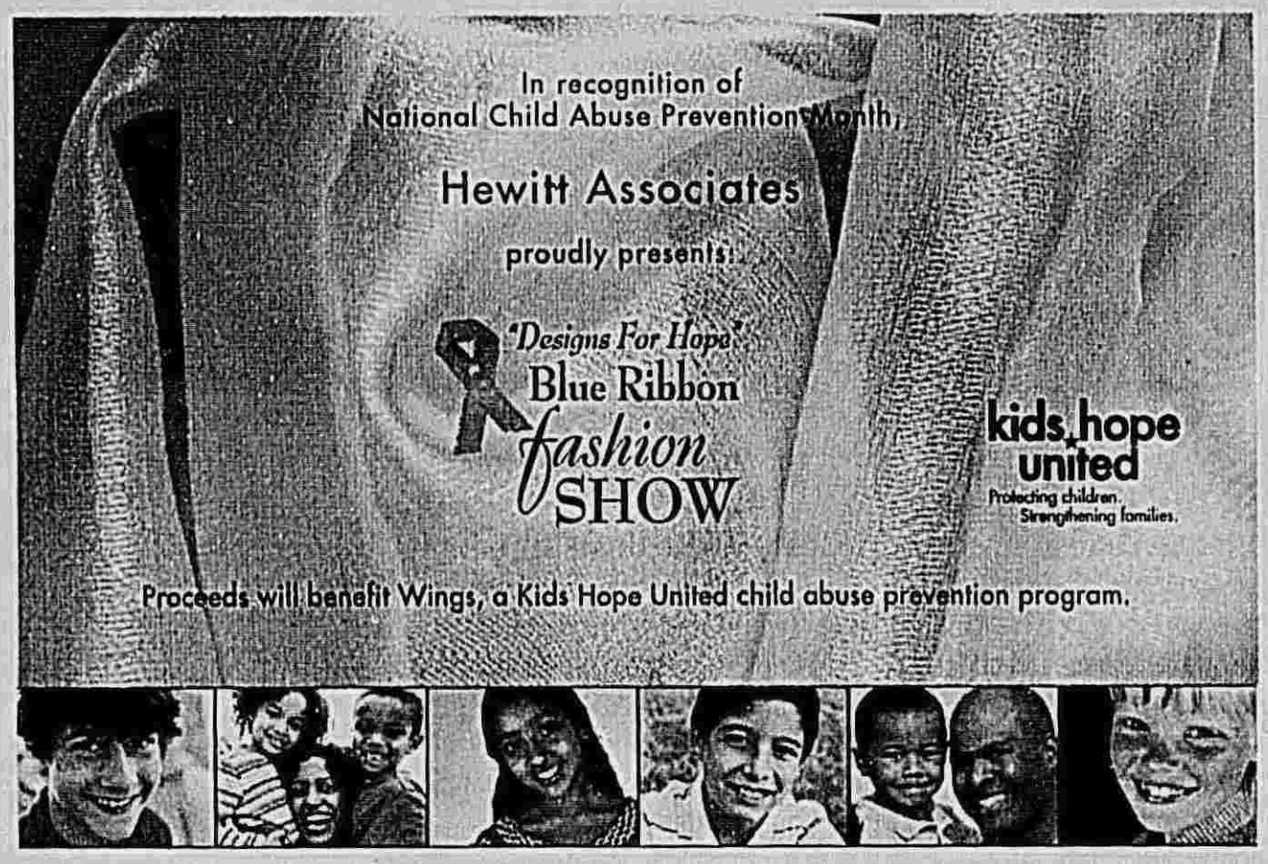

1. Make up a flyer telling their story. Make it heartwarming and include photos of the cats.
2. Never give the cats away for free. Have a fee attached. (You can always donate the money to a local shelter or rescue group.) The fee should be no less than $75.00 per cat.
3. Make sure the cats are fully vetted and have been spayed and neutered prior to adopting them out.
4. Drop the flyers off at vet's office, pet shop, coffeehouse, wherever you can post them.
5. Send the flyer to your e-mail lists and all area shelters.
6. Talk it up to everyone you know and even people you barely know.

If you get someone interested you must screen them so you can insure the cats are in good hands.

1. Ask for two references.
2. If they had animals before ask for a vet reference.
3. Call all references and ask the people how the applicant was with their previous animals.
4. Call the vet and find out if their previous animals were up-to-date on their shots and well cared for.
5. You can always ask to go and see their home and/or personally drop off the cats

As far as donating to a shelter please take a look at our shelter/humane organization. I am not modest in saying I have very proud of what we do and the accomplishments we have made in helping animals and people. Please browse our web site at www.animaleducationandrescue.org.

Knitters find help on Internet

• KNITTING

Jacobs recalled another woman, in her 20s from Round Lake, who was an anesthesiologist. She was knitting a sweater for her husband with a big, goth-looking skull on it.

Since knitting has regained popularity in the electronic age, the Internet has become a great place to draw inspiration.

The DIY television network hosts a show called "Knitty Gritty," which offers an on-line "knitty cam" slows down the often intricate steps of knitting.

"There's also a site called 'Hello Knitty,' which I found very helpful," said Lisa Miller, of Round Lake.

Miller is the novice of the group, having been knitting for only about two months. She took knitting lessons from a group the women said took the hobby a little too seriously.

"They're really militant and I won't deal with them," Nelson said of the unnamed group. "I'd sooner buy yarn off the Internet."

"And that's saying something, because with yarn you want to touch it and feel it," Jacobs added.

Some of the women said their favorite place to search for yarn is Sunflower Sampling in Crystal Lake and Hannah's Home Accents in Antioch.

Anyone who has ever worn a homemade knitted item has probably felt a certain amount of stigma attached to it or felt completely uncool wearing it. The women admit their family members and friends feel that way too sometimes.

"Most of the time, the things you make you give to your knitting friends," Jacobs explained. "You could make them a mohair sweater that makes them look like a gorilla when they wear it, but they know the amount of time, love and energy you put in it, and they don't care."

Jacobs was working on a white, mohair mediation shawl for a friend of hers who teaches yoga. She said the piece would take her about 15 hours to complete and cost around $70 to make.

All of them admit knitting has become an expensive addiction and they are all junkies.

Miller said if she could knit while she was on her elliptical trainer in the mornings, she would.

Jacobs ratted-out Nelson, saying that she actually knits when she's stopped at a red light while driving.

"My cup holder is a yarn holder," Nelson admitted sheepishly.

Joan Johnson, an Antioch chiropractor, said she came across the ladies at Panera Bread one night when she was out with her boyfriend.

"I told them, 'I have my knitting in the car,' and in unison they told me, 'Well bring it in!" Johnson said.

Horoscopes

ARIES
Mar 21/Apr 20

Don't let others' unsolved problems affect your week, Aries. Otherwise, you could become overwhelmed in a quest to solve everything rather than focusing in on yourself.

TAURUS
Apr 21/May 21

Don't get frustrated by the things you cannot control this week, Taurus. Even though it seems like everyone is out to get you, you're really just having a few bad days.

GEMINI
May 22/Jun 21

Infuse your week with a blast of unconventional thinking, Gemini. This will prevent you from getting bogged down when events get a bit stale by week's end.

CANCER
Jun 22/Jul 22

A lot of things are getting under your skin, Cancer, and you're looking for any way to have a more positive outlook. Look no further than your own family to cheer you up.

LEO
Jul 23/Aug 23

When faced with a project early this week, don't be stubborn and unreceptive to others' ideas. A collaborative effort will make the work go faster and more enjoyably.

VIRGO
Aug 24/Sept 22

Your emotions will be completely unstable this week, Virgo. One minute you'll feel fine, and the next you'll feel like you're bouncing off of walls. Take a break — that's the only cure.

LIBRA
Sept 23/Oct 23

You've been all business lately; now it's time to embrace your creative and irrational side, Libra. Take a few days to just kick up your heels and be silly for a while.

SCORPIO
Oct 24/Nov 22

You may want to stay close to home this week, Scorpio. Wherever you turn, you're bound to be met with opposition. Rather than get frustrated, use this opportunity for some alone time.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov 23/Dec 21

You may not feel like you're "clicking" with anything this week, Sagittarius. Make a few subtle adjustments to your way of thinking and things will improve.

CAPRICORN
Dec 22/Jan 20

Trust your instincts, Capricorn, even though redundant extraneous forces may try to come into play. A friend has some sound advice. Heed this person's warnings.

AQUARIUS
Jan 21/Feb 18

This is one of those weeks when others may not appreciate your bubbly disposition and carefree attitude. Don't take offense if they're not keen on your brand of humor.

PISCES
Feb 19/Mar 20

Don't be surprised if things don't go exactly according to plan, Pisces. Unexpected events are certainly going to pop up this week.

What do kids need? More fruit, please!

Fruit offers a rainbow of gorgeous colors, from blueberry blue to apple red and grape green. And, with their kid-friendly flavors, it's easy to prepare fruit in ways that are nearly irresistible. Is that true only in the summer? No way! Fruit is available every day of the year, whether it's fresh, frozen, canned, dried or juice.

When you provide fruit, such as blueberries, for your children, they get colorful, flavorful food with relatively few calories, nearly no fat, and a boost of antioxidants and other nutrients that have been shown to protect against disease.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's "MyPyramid" dietary guidelines recommend that children, ages 4 to 8, consume about 1 to 1 1/2 cups of fruit a day. For ages 9 to 13, 1 1/2 cups is the recommended amount.

By simply replacing higher-calorie snacks with fruit, children can learn that they can satisfy their hunger - and cravings for something sweet - in a natural way and without breaking the "calorie bank."

There are many ways to make fruit appealing to children. Blue banana boats , for example, include the whimsy children adore and, when they dig in, they'll enjoy a variety of yummy fruit.

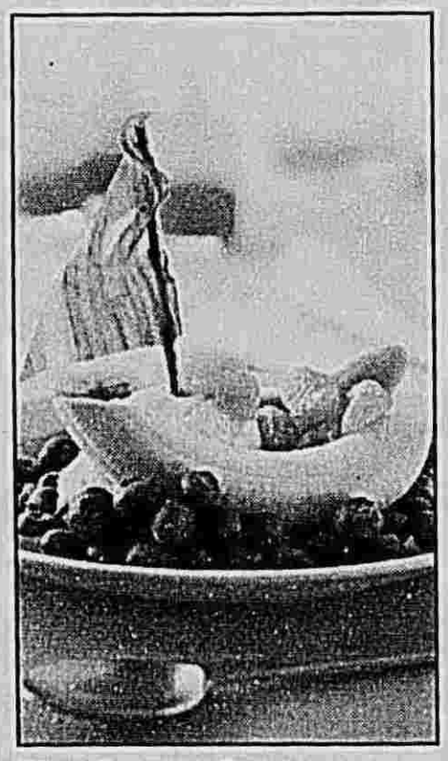

For another easy way to make fruit interesting, whirl Blueberry fruit shake in the blender. It's so easy, and tastes so good, you can serve it for breakfast, a snack or dessert.

In addition to ranking number one in antioxidant activity, a cup of blueberries has just 80 calories with virtually no fat. Fresh, frozen, canned and dried blueberries are always recipe-ready or to enjoy just as they are.

Blueberry Fruit Shake

2 cups fresh or frozen blueberries
1 cup frozen mixed fruit, such as banana, grapes, and peaches
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon sugar (optional)
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
